State Examination of Auto Drivers' Mental Ability Would Eliminate Some Accidents

EACH day we are brought closer to a realization of the fact that something must be done to curb the large number of automobile accidents.

The causes, of course, are multitudinous, but one that should be given a great deal of consideration is the lack of knowledge of the proper sginals.

The giving of an improper signal is liable to prove more harmful than if no signal was given.

* * *

IF a state law was passed which would compel all drivers to pass an examination both as to their physical and mental fitness to drive a high-powered car, and also a proper knowledge of signals and rules of the road, we feel the accidents would be reduced to a minimum. If the unfit driver was putting his or her own life in peril it would not be quite so bad, but invariably they manage to pull through an accident and the innocent party suffers.

* * *

A FEW people seem to be astounded at the rapid growth Glendale has made during the past few years, and they are beginning to ask the question in a sort of casual way, if it will continue much longer.

There are numerous reasons that we can name for the continuance of this growth and no reasons to speak of against it. Of course, there are pessimistic individuals who feel that the top has been reached, or will be soon. We have mentioned several times in our editorial columns that one need not worry over real estate values in Glendale, as long as they are under those of Hollywood, and they have quite a ways to go before they reach Hollywood's figure. Glendale will not come into her own in values until the sewers are absolutely assured, and that means when our citizens have voted the bonds to build them.

* * *

BRAND Boulevard footage is high, if you consider what it was a year ago, but by a close study of present conditions, all fair-minded individuals will readily recognize that the top is a long ways off. This will also, without doubt, apply to such streets as Broadway, Central, Maryland and Colorado. These streets and the side streets connecting them to Brand boulevard are bound to show a healthy increase for Glendale will never be a string town, but the business district will form around Broadway and Brand as a hub and build up accordingly. Of course, those streets which carry the traffic to and from the city, will be built up for a considerable distance from the hub.

* * *

THEN, of course, we have our residence property, which up to the present time, to a great extent is more than reasonable in price. No matter what your taste may be, your ideas can be met here.

So, you pessimists, stop wondering when the top will be reached and get in, while the going is good.

MUTUAL BENEFIT READING CIRCLE IS THANKED

Work of Revising Federal Circular on Its Activities Is Appreciated

At the meeting of the Mutual Benefit Reading Circle held Wednesday at the library with Mrs. A. A. Roll call of members was answered by quotations. Mrs. C. H. Bird gave a report of an interview with Judge Lindsey. Mrs. Henry continued reading from the book, "Play and Education" (Lee).

BIG TOP IS UP AND ALL SHOW READY

Glendale Merchants' Exposition to Be Biggest of Its Kind

HUGE TENT ERECTED

Framework Is Being Installed and Last Exhibitors Busy

The big tent is up and everything is ready to go.

In fact, things are already on the way and from present indications it looks as though the coming Merchants' Exposition will be the biggest thing of its kind ever held in Southern California. That's saying considerable, but a peep in the tent will convince the most hardened disbeliever.

That tent is what might be termed "a whale." It looks for all the world like a mammoth razorback. It is 640 feet long and 100 feet wide, and is the longest tent ever constructed in this country, according to showmen who have seen it and are in a position to know. The tent was furnished by the Downie Tent company of Los Angeles.

The framework for the booths is already in place and the Low Building company, which is erecting a little home in its space; the Crescent Creamery company and the Sierra Club Beverage company are already on the job and are working on their booths. Floors are being laid in all of the booths by the exposition company and all the exhibitors have to do is to add the trimmings. The space within the tent, not occupied by the booths, is being carpeted with a covering of sawdust and shavings. This will be wet down frequently throughout the exposition in order to eliminate dust.

The Lee company flag renting service has complete charge of the flag decorations and the painting and decorating of the booths. R. L. Lee, manager of this company, is personally overseeing the work of providing decorations for the show.

Mr. Lee stated this morning that 60,000 square feet of lumber is being used in the construction of the booths and that three and a half tons of flags will be used to add "life" to the tent and surroundings. Thirty-two employees of this company are on the job.

The entrance to the exposition will be at the center of the tent on the Brand boulevard side, between Lexington and Doran. Directly opposite the entrance, on the east side of the tent, the 30x60 foot stage has been constructed. This will be equipped in true metropolitan theatre style. It is from this tent that the programs, which will be given each evening during the show, will be offered. It is understood that a number of the leading vaudeville artists in the country have been engaged to appear throughout the exposition.

J. F. Geisler, who is overseeing the preparations for this show, and who is assisting Mr. Leavitt in the entire enterprise, is extremely enthusiastic over the coming show. He states that it will be something that any city in California would feel proud of. He is at this time notifying the various exhibitors that the booths are ready for decoration and is urging that they get on the ground as early as possible.

As an added attraction Charles Gay of Mission road, one of the largest wild animal breeders in the world, will, with his lions, occupy a tent to the north of the "big top." In this tent he will have at least fifty lions of all sizes, from newlyborns to grandpas. Daily Mrs. Gay will give an exhibition of how young lions are trained and how really harmless they are when handled properly.

U. of C. Invites Glendale Folks to At Home, Saturday

It is expected that a large delegation will go from Glendale, which already has a good many students enrolled there and will be sending more next fall.

Hey! Page the Spot Light! Here's a Gloom Who Wants to Light Up

Mr. I. M. A. Pessimist complained bitterly to his friend across the way, Mr. O. U. Optimist, about the "sudden dull spell" in the real estate business. Mr. Pessimist, who advertised once in a blue moon, attributed the "slump" to unfavorable weather conditions, the annual spring slack in business and to other stock causes for business indigestion.

Mr. Optimist, who is a profound adherent of steady advertising, prosperous and thrifty, was not in the least amazed at Pessimist's predicament. He merely smiled as he faced his friend and said:

"Ever think of advertising? Loosen up and put yourself in the limelight. I've been in the Press for nearly two years now—it's time you were getting in!"

ADVANCEMENT FOLKS HEAR OF CANYON ROAD

City Engineer Dupuy Declares Work Should Be Started Soon

The weekly luncheon of the Advancement Association brought together the usual group of diners and a number of men not ordinarily seen there including City Engineer Dupuy, who, when introduced, said: "This is a good bunch of starters," which was later interpreted by President Ingledue to insinuate they were not always good finishers. Mr. Dupuy, however, expressed his sympathy with the movements inaugurated and pledged himself to help push them along. Later, when called upon for information relative to the proposed opening of Isabel street into Glendale avenue, he exhibited maps showing the proposed cut, saying the property chiefly affected is owned by the Union Pacific Railroad and unless condemnation proceedings are resorted to, the co-operation of that company should be sought. Relative to proceedings to pave Glendale avenue, he confirmed the report of Dr. Stuart that action would be taken by the city council May 31, and stated that by that time his department would have worked out the change in grade necessary at Glendale and Colorado where the Colorado curb was found to be eighteen inches too high and had to be lowered.

He was also appealed to a third time for information relative to the status of the improvement of Sycamore Canyon road. This appeal came from Mr. Chandler, who referred to the time so remote that he had lost track of the date when he was required to move a house because the Sycamore Canyon improvement was going right through. Chairman Ingledue seemed to think it too big a question for discussion so late in the session, but Engineer Dupuy, after likening the matter to Pine street in Long Beach, begun in 1911 and paved in 1923, said he was, he believed, the fourth engineer who had worked upon it, but that he believed grades had been established and the city's title cleared by the recording of deeds and satisfactory judgments, so that unless something unforeseen arose, proceedings could be started by the end of next month.

One new matter recommended to the consideration of members was the support of the movement started by the Glendale Music Club to raise a scholarship fund to assist deserving young musicians, which is to take the form of a concert to be given in the auditorium of the Tuesday Afternoon Club the evening of May 24, especially for Miss Hazel Linkogel, the talented young Glendale violinist, whom the Glendale Music Club wishes to send to Chicago for instruction under one of the most famous violinists in the world. Several expressed their admiration of Miss Linkogel and her work and a resolution offered by Herman Nelson that the association indorse the concert and urge mem-

COUNCIL SELLS CANYON STRIP FOR $3000

Edison Company to Use Ground for Power Right of Way

The Glendale city council has just negotiated the sale of a strip of land 70 feet in width and comprising about 6 acres through its property on the hilltops immediately back of Glendale-Verdugo park, to the Southern California Edison company for the sum of $3000. An ordinance authorizing this sale was passed by the council Thursday night.

The Edison company intends using the piece of ground as a right of way for its "Big Creek" power line, which runs from the power houses in the Big Creek country, down to the substation in Eagle Rock canyon.

In addition to paying this amount for the property the electric company agrees to construct and maintain a roadway in good condition to the land, which fact will save the city a considerable amount of money. Up to this time the city has had no way of getting to the ground except by trail.

The 77 acres of which this six acres is a part, was purchased by the city several years ago for $1250.

Mrs. W. C. Mabry, president, announced the Memorial Day parade and requested as many members as possible to enter machines in the parade.

Mrs. Davenport announced that a truck from the Children's Hospital would call at her home sometime next week to collect any salvage which the members of the organization wished to donate.

Mrs. E. V. Bacon, ways and means chairman, and who also is in charge of the May Festival, announced that tickets for the street dance to be given tonight would be 25 cents. She also stated that nurses and doctors would be at the school to hold a clinic for the examination of all children under school age. ROTARY CLUB TO CONSIDER THE CIVIC CENTER

Educational and Public Affairs Committee to Study Proposition

At the regular weekly luncheon meeting of the Glendale Rotary Club held yesterday at the Citizens' building auditorium, Jack Huntley, chairman on the committee on securing Haynes canyon for a Boy Scout camp, reported that up to the present time pledges for $6,600 had been made, which will insure the taking up of the option on the site and the establishment of a permanent Boy Scout camp for the Verdugo council. Roy Kent, also a member of the Boy Scout camp committee, gave an outline of the plan of purchase, among other things being that leases on cabin sites for a term of years would be auctioned off to Rotarians and friends of the Boy Scouts.

France Henry, who has been on a trip to San Francisco, was present and told of his visit to a Rotary club in the north. E. E. The meeting was then turned over to Ed Hewitt, who was chairman of the entertainment committee. He announced that musical numbers would be furnished by Miss Hazel Linkogel and a mixed quartette from the Glendale Union high school, which includes Gertrude Heideman, Winifred Parker, Claude Whitfield and Irvin Carver. Miss Linkogel gave a very delightful violin solo, accompanied by Henry Grass. The numbers given by the quartette included "Slumber Song" (Lohr), and "When I Was a Tiny Boy" (Barrett).

Glendale building permits for May went over the $400,000 mark Thursday, being exactly $9928 in excess of that figure. The permits taken out yesterday bring the total for the year up to $4,073,000.

Employees of the building department believe the prospects are bright for another $1,000,000 month during May. Everything points to the latter part of the month being active along the building line. The largest permit taken out yesterday was by Walter H. Leimert, this being for a residence on North Howard street, to cost about $10,000.

The permits issued up to noon were as follows:

J. G. HUNTLEY INJURED AS HORSE FALLS

Animal Topples Over on Its Rider Before He Gets Free

AT THE RESEARCH

Accident Happens While Riding With W. E. Evans Last Night

J. G. Huntley of 1434 North Highland avenue is at the Glendale Research Hospital as the result of injuries received when he was thrown from a horse while riding about 5:30 o'clock last night. Mr. Huntley had purchased the horse last week at Tujunga and had it only since Sunday. Mr. Huntley and W. E. Evans of North Orange street went for a horseback ride last evening about 5:30 o'clock and were endeavoring to find a short cut to the northern part of Griffith Park.

The party crossed San Fernando road. A freight train was slowly approaching and Mr. Evans and Lucian Bulette, a young man who looks after Mr. Evans' horse, crossed the tracks. Mr. Huntley, however, evidently did not think he could make it and remained on this side. According to eye-witnesses the horse became restless waiting for the train to pass and reared. As it reared Mr. Huntley went off and the horse came over on him. Last night Mr. Huntley's condition was such that it was difficult to diagnose the case. A more favorable report was given this morning, however, and it is believed that the most serious injury is a fractured pelvis bone.

After the accident Mr. Huntley was taken to his home and from there removed to the Glendale Research Hospital, where Dr. Young has charge of the case.

LARGE AUDIENCE GREETS MADRIGAL CLUB ARTISTS

Second Event of Season Shows Result of Earnest Work

(By GERTRUDE GIBBS)

A good and most appreciative audience greeted the Madrigal club at its spring concert given in the auditorium of the Tuesday Afternoon club Thursday night. Its ensemble was most pleasing, its members being gowned in white, while its director Mrs. Florence E. Parker, was in black.

This, the second concert of its fourth season, revealed considerable progress in fine shadings and in enunciation which was especially fine for chorus work. The program was cumulative in interest, closing with "The Lost Chord" (Sullivan-Bartlett) in which the fine soprano of the soloist, Mrs. Virginia Freeman, was sustained by the full chorus.

The chorus was recalled several times, the audience being especially pleased with "The Dance" (Moszkowski), "The Storm" (Risher), "Mah Linda Lou" (Strickland-Harris), and "The Tragic Tale" (Fox).

A dramatic interlude and a most effective one, was the reading by Mrs. A. H. Montgomery of Owen Meredith's "Aux Italiens" interspersed with selections from "Il Trovatore" sung off stage by Mesdames Cole, Maynard, Meadows, Cotton, Roach, Chappell, Parker and Bullinger. Mrs. Montgomery is the chairman of the non-section member group of the Tuesday Afternoon club which sponsored the concert and will share with the Madrigal club the returns. She was recalled for an encore and gave a little negro dialect number.

A solo artist of special interest was the young violinist, Miss Hazel Linkogel, who was greeted with welcoming applause when she appeared and who was enthusiastically recalled after every number. The quality of her work and of her instrument drew murmurs of admiration while numbers were in progress and rose to tumultuous applause at the conclusion. It was a foretaste of what may be expected at the recital in her honor that is to be given May 24 under the auspices of the Glendale Music club and other organizations in the same auditorium.

The announcement that George Bingham Cooper, brother of Mrs. Virginia Freeman who is such a favorite in Glendale, would be a soloist was of special interest, and his numbers proved a treat, especially fine was the German selection "Wiedmung" (Schumann). He has a very beautiful and highly cultivated voice and is a distinct addition to the musical colony of Glendale. Mrs. Roberta Young was his artistic piano accompanist. The accompaniments of Mrs. John A. Wright for the Madrigal club and Miss Linkogel revealed her as a musician who blends fine technique with sentiment and artistic discrimination.

U. S. C. ALUMNI TO HOLD BANQUET AT HARRIETT MAE'S

All former Trojans or those who attended U. S. C., will meet Tuesday evening, May 22 at the Harriett Mae Tea Room, across from the Glendale Union high school. Brewster of the high school will give a reading; a U. S. C. male quartet will sing, which with several other numbers gives promise of a splendid program. Howard L. Butterfield of the high school is receiving reservations. A goodly number has already written in for reservations.

GIRL SCOUTS TO GIVE DAINTY PERFORMANCE

First Offering to Be for the Benefit of Uniform Fund

An entertainment which is of great interest to the younger set and to many Glendale parents will be given this evening in the Wilson avenue school auditorium when the play, "The Moth and the Princess Moonbeam" will be presented by girls of Troop Four, Girl Scouts, under direction of Miss Margaret Sharpe, their captain, and the author of the play.

The proceeds will be used for the purchase of scout uniforms that they may appear properly garbed in the Memorial Day parade.

The little drama is a fairy play showing what happened when King Pluto of Elkland sought a bride for his son, Prince Moth, in Fairyland. The music is taken from the score of "Midsummer Night's Dream." Ruth Berndt will play the part of "Titania," the fairy queen; La Verne Wolfram will be the "Princess Moonbeam;" Rose Bagley, "Prince Moth," and Ruth Benner "King Pluto."

The costumes and scenery have been designed by members of the cast who have entered into the affair heart and soul and who have been greatly assisted by Miss Dorothy Wright who has drilled them for the fairy dances.

Mrs. J. Hartman Has Cincinnati Reunion

Mrs. J. Hartman of 515 East Elk avenue entertained a group of former Cincinnati friends at a luncheon and "500" party yesterday. Roses, cornflowers and marigolds were used as floral decorations. C-O-D-E-S DINE WITH MUCH GLEE ON SCHOOL FOOD

Interesting Toasts Are Given by the Cabinet Staff

The C-O-D-E-S banquet at Glendale High Thursday evening proved a hilarious and highly successful affair at which covers were laid for forty-six.

It was prepared by pupils of the advanced class in domestic science under the direction of Miss Ellen Hanson, the girls who served being Misses Dorothy Lindgren, Josephine Farnham, Sara Allen, Ruth Hunt, Elva Bowen, Jo Ruth Clark and Irene Miller.

The tables were decorated in the school colors, red and black; the silver cups won in championships constituting part of the adornment, and the favors were horns which were effectively used throughout the evening. The dinner which was delicious, was composed of: Fruit cocktail, roast beef with new potatoes, string beans, rolls and butter; combination salad and olives; French vanila ice cream with strawberries and white cake; coffee.

Representing the faculty were: Vice-Principal Mrs. George U. Moyse, Miss Jennie Freeman, director of Stylus work; Paul Webb, instructor in journalism; and Miss Corry, debating coach.

Stanley Johns, president of the student body, acted as toastmaster for the following program of toasts:

Betty Higgins, "First Semester Cabinet."

Helen Sherwood, "Second Semester Cabinet."

Isabel Tousey, "The Stylus."

Evert Smits, "The Explosion."

Paul Cunningham, "Debating."

Fred Peck, "Oratory."

Mrs. Moyse gave a fine talk on school spirit and how self government has been strengthened at Glendale High the past year, touching on the increased sense of responsibility displayed by students.

OFFER VALUES AT FERBER'S FOR MONEY

C. H. McBurney Gives Assurance That Low Prices Will Prevail

"We are offering very exceptional values in merchandise in our store," announced C. H. McBurney, manager of Ferber's department store, which has had its doors open since Thursday of last week, at 108 South Brand boulevard.

"We are making special offers in men's underwear, dress shirts, in ladies' sweaters, drug sundries, gingham yard goods, percale and Japanese crepe house aprons, and fine sheets and muslins," he stated, "that cannot be found elsewhere.

"Our first week in Glendale was very fine for a new business establishment, and entirely came up to my expectations. We intend to continue offering our goods at low prices, giving telling values for the money. The Glendale people have received us cordially, and in return we are going to make them the best offers in merchandise, within our power."

GIRLS' FRIENDLY HEARS OF WORK IN L. A. HOME

Deaconess Wile, superintendent of the Church Home for Children in Los Angeles, was the speaker of the evening at the recent meeting of the Glendale branch of the Girls' Friendly society, which was held in the guild hall of the Episcopal church at Harvard and Louise streets. She gave an interesting outline of the history of the home, telling how it had started and developed until at the present time it is housing thirty-four children.

After the talk the Girls' Friendly presented the deaconess with a rag rug for the home, which had been made by the members of the Girls' Friendly society.

The hostesses for the evening were Mrs. P. E. Cory, Mrs. Powers and Mrs. A. A. Bassett. An excellent meal was served after the meeting, which was enjoyed by all. There were six new members present, which brings the membership up to 30. The aim of the society at present is for a membership of 50. The girls are planning to give a dance sometime in June.

Miss Marcella Webb to Receive Friends

Miss Marcella Webb will give an especial welcome to friends who desire to visit her dancing classes next Saturday morning from 10 to 12. Every child will be given an ice cream cone.

Mothers who are contemplating having their children begin taking dancing lessons would do well to visit these classes

Miss Webb specializes in Italian and Russian Ballet. This thorough technique leads naturally and easily into all other forms—such as toe dancing, Grecian, Spanish, acrobatic, and Oriental. A large and well equipped studio is a great asset, and this Miss Webb has in her location at 140 A. North Brand, which is right in the heart of Glendale.

ADVANCEMENT FOLKS HEAR OF SYCAMORE CANYON

bers to purchase tickets, was adopted unanimously.

Another new project earnestly recommended to the thoughtful consideration of members was presented by Dr. Charles Stuart, in a brief review of the effort on the part of community service officials to promote the purchase of the present high school grounds by the city to be used for a civic and community center. He stated that the movement appeared to have strong backing and it would mean the abandonment of the present city hall on Broadway. He thought the association should be thinking about the matter.

Architect Arthur Lindley was present for the first time since his marriage, and was welcomed and congratulated. He said the hotel plans were progressing and that preliminary bids were coming in which would help to determine the cost. He also stated that the billboard picture, measuring 12 by 15 feet 9 inches, was finished and ready for setting at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue. Mr. Lindley's associate, Arthur Selkirk, was also introduced. Members of the hotel committee stated it is to cost in the neighborhood of $400,000, exclusive of furnishings, and is to be built under independent contracts, with the work supervised by Architect Lindley.

Dr. Stuart urged the resuscitation of the branch post office project, as a druggist, constantly besieged to sell stamps, also, as a bidder for the branch post office, who wishes to use the space he has offered to dedidate to post office purposes, provided the post office department does not wish to accept it. The doctor declared he had submitted two propositions and had heard from neither of them. In view of the fact that Charles Stanley, chairman of the post office committee, is ill, and Dr. Henry Harrower, one of the members is absent, on motion of Mr. Kinch, Dr. Jessie Russell was added to the committee, and later Mr. Kinch and Dr. Stuart, on motion of Dr. Russell, the three were instructed to bring the matter to the attention of Senator Shortridge, who is now in Los Angeles.

Nothing new developed relative to the lighting systems of east Broadway to the city limits, or Glendale avenue. Mr. Kinch reported a reluctance on the part of Broadway owners to abandon the five-standard lights, and Dr. Stuart reported the sentiment of Glendale avenue residents from Sparr Heights in favor of a standard lighting system.

T. W. Watson, former city manager and a member of the association, though he has not actively participated in its deliberations, expressed his sympathy with the improvements proposed by the organization, and said the five-light standards are now considered out of date, and he believed the time would come when they would be abandoned.

FAMOUS WHITE WOLF IS CONQUERED AT LAST

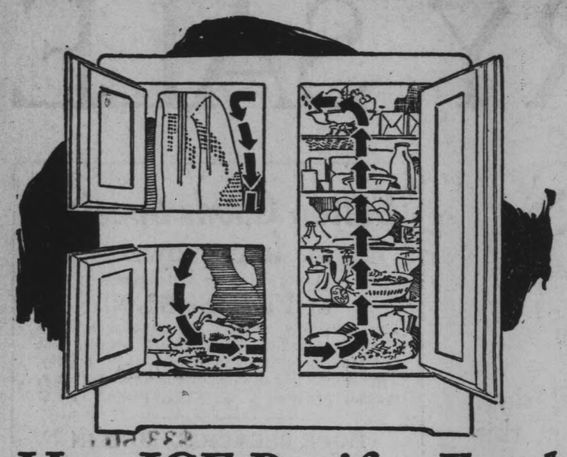
GREAT FALLS, Mont., May 18.—(United Press).— Lady Snowdrift, pure white she-wolf, one of whose pups was captured and later became a movie star known as Lady Silver, has met death at the hands of the government wolfer near Highwood.

Don Stephens, the wolfer, found the wolf in a cave high in the mountains, whither she had dragged a heavy trap across miles of country. A bullet between the eyes ended the career of the savage old she-wolf, after years of devastating raids on the sheep herds and cattle of the district.

According to records of the wolfers, Lady Snowdrift had killed 21 calves this spring.

WOOL SELLING AT 40c POUND

RENO, Nev., May 18.—The wool clip of Churchill county will be ready for market about June 1 at a price of from forty to forty-six cents. The yield of wool this year is expected to be about the same as 1922.



How ICE Purifies Food

Your refrigerator is a purifier as well as preserver of food.

The cold air from the Ice settles down, forcing the warm air from the food upward and into the ice chamber.

Here it is chilled and the vapors condensed.

This circulation of air gathers the impurities off of the food and deposits them on the melting ice, to be carried off through the drain.

That is why a well filled refrigerator means pure, wholesome food.

That is why you should use plenty of ice every day of the year.

ACCORDION SKIRT IS COMING BACK INTO STYLE

BY HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor of the United Press
(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, N. Y., May 18—"Accordions are replacing ukeleles," says a news item.

Accordion pleats are also the latest instruments of fashion. In the selection of summer frocks, nets, lace, pastel shades of chiffon and voille all play the role of the accordion.

One can buy these materials ready pleated by the yard at many of the department stores, in an assortment of colors and combinations of colors. Sometimes black and white net combined in layers are pleated in skirt lengths and used with plain bodices of black net for the summer afternoon gown.

Dance frocks also dance to the tune of the accordion, with skirts of pleated chiffon in pastel colors attached to plain bodices of the same material. These simple dance frocks are more popular just at present than the beaded effects with clinging lines, as they are more summery and allow more freedom of motion for the dance. White, lemon and almond green are the favorite colors used for the dance frock.

The pleated sports skirt has never met with such popularity as it has this season and often it is matched with a pleated cape of finger-tip length.

Dressy gowns for street wear are not without their share of pleats, which often begin at the knee, giving the new flounce effect. A dress of this sort appeared recently on the avenue. It was made of black silk crepe in straight line effect with a pleated flounce set on at the knee. Sprays of appliqued flowers made of several thicknesses of chiffon in colors mauve, red and green adorned the upper portion of the frock adding a touch of brilliant color to the black which is such a popular idea at present.

* * *

Matrons who are weary of the batteau shaped necklines will be interested in the surplice bodice effects which are gaining foothold in the fashion world lately. So often the V-shaped neckline is more becoming than the rounded or batteau-shaped one and the surplice front offers an interesting change.

* * *

To be just a trifle dressy the sports jacquette must have sash ends embroidered in colors and tying in front in draped Egyptian effect. The sash is attached at the side seams—leaving the back plain and unbelted—and drapes across the front of the jacquette with wide ends tying in front.

* * *

One-piece Jersey bathing suits monogramed in wool on the left side are among the new wrinkles in bathing attire.

A pretty finish for the batteau neck is the upstanding bias fold of organdy which ties in a bow on the left shoulder with long ends falling to the waistline. Picot-edged ribbon is used in this same manner.

* * *

Colored voille undergarments embroidered in tiny rosebuds like the handkerchief rosebuds are as pretty and summery as they are new. Green, yellow, orchid and pink are the most effective colors for voille undergarments.

* * *

Following the Parisian fancy for combining black and brown, American designers are introducing black crepe gowns beaded in bronze beads. Worn with bronze shoes and hat the effect is bound to be stunning.

LACE COMES INTO ITS OWN AGAIN

Lace comes into its own this season. Here is shown a dainty white lace frock with an unusual trimming in its narrow white ribbon girdle with squares of jet making a decided contrast.

NEWS OF EAGLE ROCK

C. OF C. 'HITCHING WAGON TO THE STARS'

No Vital Improvement Is Too "Impossible" to Be Considered and Worked for

EAGLE ROCK, May 18.—The Chamber of Commerce is not only "hitching its wagon to a star," but is tying up to many "stars" in the way of public improvements, and going after them in an organized and energetic body.

Eight essential improvements predominate in the answers given on the questionaires sent out with the preliminary ballots. The questions concern the things of importance to be undertaken by the chamber to improve existing conditions, and the opportunities for betterment of conditions in the various lines of business which the members represent.

The most frequent subjects touched upon in the answers, some in detail with definite suggestions, and others merely in outline are: Street car service, water problems, sewer difficulties, zoning, fire protection, street illumination, the school question and the institution of a "clean up" campaign.

Many suggestions touching upon other matters are made in the answers to the written queries upon which the platform of work for the coming year will be based. Advertising the beauty and value of Eagle Rock widely is a frequent topic on the lists. One member suggests that the most beneficial institutions to be undertaken for his business would be a city park, a high school and a hotel. Another requests a move to establish a local credit association. Several ask for the paving of Glassell boulevard. Someone has called attention to the parking of automobiles, and a resident of the district asks for the move to have a wig-wag signal put up at Verdugo road and San Fernando road.

In dealing with the transportation question, five cent car fare and five-minute service are both cited as needed changes in the present service.

One questionaire states that a move should be made to widen the zone for bungalow courts and apartment houses. Another considers the establishment of a branch postoffice near the corner of Townsend and Colorado of signal benefit to his business. Telephone services comes up frequently in the answers. Many request that the side streets north of Colorado be lighted at night.

One suggestion has been made for the appointment of a committee on "Good Road Maintenance." There seems to be a decided cooperation of ideas on the value to the city of instituting a "City Beautiful" campaign to interest the residents in keeping their property in sightly and artistic condition.

A suggestion was also made that not only should Eagle Rock be the subject of intensive advertising throughout the country in magazines and newspapers, but should also be advertised as a distinct community apart from the district southeast which is often confused by strangers visiting here as a part of Eagle Rock. The fact was pointed out that Los Angeles knows little of the beautiful district lying at the foot of the hills where some of the loveliest homes and garden spots in the southland are situated. A request should be put to Los Angeles to give Eagle Rock more notice on the travel maps and advertising, it was stated.

Several persons called attention to the fact that by proper manipulation there should be a possibility of having a high school established, to be connected with Occidental College. This would solve the educational problem faced by Eagle Rock through the loss of the advantages of the Glendale High School, it was stated.

As to the first thing which the Chamber of Commerce should undertake for the good of the community at large, one member cited that there should be an organized move for immediate sewer connection, another to improve Eagle Rock Park, and still another to clean off all vacant properties as a means of fire protection and to beautify the appearance of Eagle Rock.

All these points show the trend of public desire in the way of improvements, and also bring out the subjects which the Chamber of Commerce expects to deal with as soon as the secretary is appointed and committees are planned to work with the board of directors.

A farmer was driving a load of hay along a narrow road when behind him came a man with a horse and trap. The farmer drove out of the way to let him pass.

A few moments later along came a young fellow on a bicycle, who cried to the farmer to let him pass.

"Hey, there! Pull out and let me by!"

"Oh, dunno if I am in any hurry," the farmer replied.

"You seemed in a hurry to let that other fellow pass."

"That's because his horse was eating my hay."

Mike was working diligently on his potato patch when he saw the postman coming up the road, bearing for him a black-edged envelope.

Mike became uneasy and showed it.

"Hope it's not bad news," said the postman.

"It is that," said Mike, glancing at the address. "It's upset I am intoirely. My brother Pat's dead. I can tell by his handwriting."

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

By E. R. WAITE,
Secretary Shawnee Oklahoma Board of Commerce.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK—

THAT it is said that the health of the people is their greatest asset?

THAT emphasis is often put in the wrong place?

THAT the world often forgets that a man's life does not consist of world goods?

THAT what matters the wealth a man has, if he does not have good health to enjoy it?

THAT what matters the mines, the farms, the industries, if men do not have stout hearts and strong arms, untrammelled by disease and debility to work them and keep the old world going?

THAT good health is not only an essential to industrial success, but for the enjoyment of life itself?

THAT freedom from sickness and infirmity insures the condition upon which success is possible?

THAT THERE ARE PEOPLE WITH DISEASES OF THE MIND, WHICH NOT ONLY PREJUDICE THEIR OWN WELFARE, BUT THAT OF THEIR CITY, AS WELL?

GALA DAY IS BIG OCCASION AT CENTRAL

Embryo Vaudeville Stars to Volunteer Services for Big Show

Gala Day for the Central school students has been set for May 25, which falls on Friday. This annual event is featured by athletic classics participated in by the leading athletes of the school, and by numerous special features worked up by the students themselves.

The celebration will start this year with an early morning series of aesthetic and folk dances out under the trees. Miss Londergan, who teaches the 6-A grade, has the instruction for these dances in charge; her young pupils present some artistic interpretive outdoor numbers. Evelyn Nair, pupil of Ernest Belcher, will dance several solo numbers. She is well known for her acrobatic dancing, and is a favorite of her schoolmates at all volunteer entertainments. Nancy Grant, talented young aesthetic dancer, will also appear in the opening program.

Miss Helen Miller is training a cast in a one-act humorous play. This will be put on in the auditorium later in the afternoon. A number of the Eagle Rock boys have been listed for acrobatic feats and "strong-man" stunts. There will be sleight-of-hand acts, cartoon artists, and any number of other features which a modern vaudeville show presents. All will be volunteer acts by the school students.

The girls' glee club will appear on the auditorium program and, although no announcement has been made of the theme or title, a pageant is being rehearsed for production at the same time. The celebration will last throughout the day, and will be on of the events of the year at Central.

SHRUB STEALER IS MAKING ROUNDS IN EAGLE ROCK

Residents of Exclusive Districts Up in Arms Against Rare Plant Collector

The shrub stealer! He creeps on lawns at night, or in the early evening dusk and, with ample paraphernalia, carefully extracts rare plants and young trees from their chosen locations, wraps them up, and silently steals away. Or he scales back fences while residents are away from their homes, picks out what few choice bushes he likes from their rose gardens and takes them with him when he leaves.

This is the latest type of thief to make a noticeable appearance here. Although such stealing goes on more or less all of the time, there has not formerly seemed to be an organized attempt to garner all of the choice landscape decorations from the beautiful garden spots which Eagle Rock residents take pride in creating. Numerous complaints have reached the officers of the theft of lexpensive lawn "trimmings." The shrubbery stealer evidently knows a good thing, for he rarely takes anything except the very best.

His love for the rare and beautiful plants, which he no doubt makes a good profit on as he has no "overhead" expense in his business, will lead him into serious difficulties if he is discovered and apprehended at his outdoor sport. for residents who have suffered losses through his nightly rounds in the more exclusive districts are waiting for his capture.

ALL DISTRICTS ARE REPRESENTED ON BALLOT

Candidates for Final C. of C. Directors Election Are Well Chosen

The preliminary ballot cast for the twenty-four men who will run on the final ballot for the board of twelve directors of the re-organized Chamber or Commerce showed that very little campaigning has been carried on at this "elimination election." From the scattering manner in which the votes were cast it is evident that each member used his own judgment in voting. Each was a candidate on this ballot and there were many who received three, four, five or eight votes. All received some, at least one or two. There were about five members who fell just one or two votes short of the number which placed the present candidates' names upon the final ballot.

Over three hundred ballots were sent out and, while they were not all returned, a majority of the voting membership in the chamber responded to take advantage of the opportunity to select the directors from among their most competent fellow townsmen.

The final ballot was sent out yesterday, and the polls will close promptly at 7:30 on May 22. The announcement of the men elected for the board will be made the same evening. Twenty-four candidates' names are placed on this final ballot. Twelve of these will be elected, six to serve for two years, and the other six receiving fewer votes to serve but one year.

The board of directors that will guide the Chamber of Commerce throughout the coming months of re-organization and intensive work that is essential for betterment of public conditions will be chosen from the following: O. J. Root, Godfrey Edwards, John G. Caddell, J. Hartley Taylor, Dr. John C. Shedd, John T. Bailey, Earl M. Daniels, Dr. H. B. Crawford, P. F. Schumacher, A. L. McCamman, Sherrill B. Osborne, Fred E. Biles, P. H. Ducker, Shirley W. Allen, W. R. Johnston, B. B. Martsolf, Judge G. W. Craig, Marion M. Hull, M. D.; C. L. Suits, C. C. Mattison, Emil F. Swanson, J. C Claussen, H. H. Maxon, C. W. Young.

SLAG BECOMES ARSENIC MINE

[By Associated Press]

EUREKA, Nev., May 18.—An old slag dump, abandoned many years ago, covering more than an acre of ground at the head of the principal street here, has a value of from $80 to $100 per ton, according to mining men here. Thousands of round, pot-shaped slugs, waste from the slag pots, go to make up this acre of junk, which twenty years ago could have been bought for a small amount of money.

In the mining days of the past, fourteen smelting furnaces cleared the country of every stick of firewood for a radius of forty miles around Eureka, silver was legislated to a point where further mining was unprofitable, and Eureka was left with a gloomy hill of slag where furnaces once roared and hissed.

Each of the 800 to 1,000 pound slag pots on the Eureka dump is said to contain from thirty to thirty-three percent arsenic. Spray of calcium arsenic kills the boll weevil which infests the cotton fields of the south. With this discovery the demand for arsenic became great, even exceeding the supply, and quantities were imported from abroad and the market price soared from a few cents a pound to a peak of seventeen cents.

Approximately 600 tons per week of the slugs, technically known as speiss, are being shipped to smelting plants in Utah and Nevada. Speiss has also been treated in Tacoma, Wash., as well as at Toulon, near Lovelock, Nevada. In addition to the arsenic content of the slag, the gold and silver is valued as high as $12 a ton.

Although the present operating company holds title to the Eureka slag dump, a well known mine surveyor declared that many of the speiss pots rolled off the original smelting company's holdings on to unpatented property. This land has been taken up with hopes ultimately to share in the profits from the "junk heap" gold mine.

Southwest Convention To Be Held at Santa Barbara, June 7 to 9

[By Associated Press]

SANTA BARBARA, Ca., May 18—More than 400 organizations will be represented here at the convention of the League of the Southwest, June 7-9, according to Arnold Kruckman, secretary of the league.

Mr. Kruckman stated that while the convention was orginally called to "crystallize opinion concerning the development of the Colorado river, the discussion of Indian affairs has since been included in the agenda." This, he says, will bring hundreds of persons to the convention who otherwise would not have attended.

General Hugh Scott, former Indian fighter but in late years a peacemaker among the red men, will attend the meets, the secertary stated. Zane Grey, author; Armanda Santacruz, head of the international commission in charge of the boundary line between the United States and the southern republic, will attend or will have a representative; senators, heads of federal departments, governors, and noted leaders of the west will attend, according to Mr. Kruckman.

Engineers from Mexico, now engaged in making a survey of the Colorado river, expect to have the work completed in time to report to the convention. They plan to use airplanes, burros and automobiles before they reach the headwaters of the river, it is said.

PASSING OF THE OLD VERDUGO RANCHO

By PHIL FELTON, Casa Verdugo

When the silver veil of twilight
Falls upon Verdugo's hill,
Loitering 'round the dear old rancho,
Pleasant mem'ries haunt me still.
When the silver lamps were swinging,
Sending forth their cheerful glow,
There were happy voices singing
In that dear old long ago.

Twinkling toes and merry laughter—
What glad mem'ries they recall—
When Viola, sweet Viola,
Seemed the happiest soul of all.
Like some little fairy dancing,
How my heart with pleasure stir'd
As I listened to her singing,
Like some golden-throated bird.

Came a gallant to the rancho—
Just a little while to stay—
And he lingered and he lingered—
Then he stole our flower away.
Now I take me to the rancho,
All is darkness, all is still,
And I sit and dream of bygones
'Neath the old Verdugo hill.

CHORUS

Oh, how fragrant is the memory
That is living with me still,
Of that dearly loved old Rancho
'Neath Verdugo's silent hill.

NEW YORK, May 18.—Labor's second venture in banking in New York City was dedicated today at the formal opening of the Federation bank at Thirty-fourth street and Eighth avenue.

THE MARKETS

NEW YORK, May 18.—Pressure against secondary speciaities, many of which established new low prices for the year, weighed the entire list down in today's stock market. Trading was on an exceedingly small scale, sales approximating 450,000 shares.

FARNUM'S LATEST AT GLENDALE IS A STRONG FILM

Shades of Buffalo Bill! Colonel Cody, if he could but gaze at "Brass Commandments," would envy William Farnum his part in the Fox production, which began a two days run at the Glendale theatre last night.

The story was written by Chas. Alden Seltzer, who is well known as an author of breezy Western tales. The film sizzles with action, containing exhibitions of dazzling riding, clever shooting and a whirlwind fight that furnishes a strong dramatic climax. There is romance, too; not the sticky molasses kind, but red blooded, glowing, live romance.

Those who remember Tom Santschi's oft mentioned battle with Farnum in "The Spoilers" will find a more exciting combat in this offering. In addition to the star and Santschi, the cast includes Wanda Hawley and Claire Adams, as well as Charles LeMoyne, Lon Poff and Al Fremont.

The entertainment value of the picture is best judged by the way in which the audience received it. In this case their approval was marked. The tense moments of the film brought forth the same clenching of hands and hunching of shoulders in the audience that were enacted on the screen. The romance was delightful in its charm, and at the finish many favorable comments were audible. If you were there you probably heard them. If you were not, you should go today.

TO NAME FORD IF PRESIDENT

[By Associated Press]

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, May 18.—David S. Beach of Bridgeport, Conn., aspires to be president of the United States, and Mrs. Beach wants the job of vice-president. He has already selected his cabinet. In a letter received by state authorities here, Mr. Beach stated that he and Mrs. Beach plan to run on the "People's National Independent Corporation ticket," and requested that the Utah ballots for the 1924 election be made acocrdingly.

Among the chief principles of the new party is the elimination of all state governments and governing of the land under one central government.

In anticipation of occupying the White House, Beach informed the Utah state officials that his cabinet line-up will be as follows: Secretary of State, Charles E. Hughes; Secretary of the Treasury, Henry Ford; Secretary of War, General John J. Pershing; Secretary of the Navy, Theodore Roosevelt; Secretary of Commerce, Robert M. La-Follette; Secretary of Agriculture, William E. Borah; Secretary of Labor, John J. Davis; Secretary of the Interior, Hiram Johnson; Postmaster General, Josephus Daniels; Attorney General, Samuel Untermeyer.

Civic Center Project Reaches City Council From the West Siders

weeks. These are located at Vista and Palmer.

A petition for the opening of Garfield and Windsor east of Verdugo road was referred to the city engineer.

Bids for the improvement of Kenneth road, Sonora to Alameda were opened and referred to the city engineer for checking and report.

On request of Mrs. Soper, it was decided, on motion of Councilman Horn, to investigate the circumstances surrounding the death of Mrs. Soper's granddaughter, several weeks ago.

Mr. Edwards of the firm of Edwards & Wildey, asked the council what it would do with a request for a franchise for a bus line in the west section of Glendale, should another be made by the Pacific Electric. In view of the fact that Mr. Gulick's 90-day permit has 40 days to run, the request of Mr. Edwards was declared out of order.

The corner of Adams and Palmer was changed from a residential to a commercial district and the city attorney was instructed to draft the necessary amendment to the zoning ordinance.

As there were no protests against the vacating of a certain 30-foot strip in the Ross and Thom tract for roadway purposes, the next step in this work was ordered taken.

No protests were received against the setting aside as a commercial district of Glendale avenue, from Lexington to Monterey road, and the next step in this work was ordered taken.

The petition to set aside as a commercial district, the intersection of Sycamore Canyon road and Holly drive, was denied.

The matter of setting aside as a first-class residential district, Adams street, Lexington to Monterey, was upheld and the city attorney was instructed to draft the necessary amendment to the zoning ordinance.

The opening and widening of the extension of Grayhold street was laid over for one week.

The following resolutions were adopted:

A resolution adopting maps in the office of the city engineer.

A resolution ordering the vacating of Kenneth road.

A resolution ordering the work of the improvement of the first alley east of Louise street.

A resolution of intention to improve a portion of Glenwood road and other streets in the northwestern section.

A resolution of intention to improve Pacific avenue, Gilbert and Gsell streets.

A resolution of intention to improve a portion of Milford and Alexander streets.

GRAND VIEW HAS GOOD COMMUNITY SONGFEST

Given Under Auspices of the Local P.-T. A.

An enthusiastic audience was present last night at the Grand View Community Sing, held at the Grand View school, given under the auspices of the Grand View P.-T. A.

Arrangements for the evening were made by Mrs. G. W. Finney, president of the Grand View P.-T. A., and Mrs. Charles Ellsperman, and under the active direction of Mrs. W. Q. Widdows and Mrs. Alexander Mitchell, the audience joined in the singing of favorites, both old and new, among them "Old Black Joe," "Love's Old Sweet Song," "Long, Long Trail," "Liza Jane," and the new community song, which tells the people of the community that they must "Get together, work together, play together, and pull together."

All seemed to consider that the hour and one-half was well spent.

The audience evidenced great glee over hearing Mrs. Finney, Mrs. Dorothy Berryman, and Mr. P. G. Wheldon pay the penalty of singing beyond the signal, by giving solo numbers. It must be said for the penalized ones, that these solos were very well executed, though the soloists were persevering through difficulties by reason of the evident amusement.

Illustrative of the interest that is being manifested in these community sings, it was a coincidence that each of the ladies directly in charge had cancelled a social engagement in order to be present and render service in the interest of developing community spirit. The enthusiasm and pleasure manifested last night, it is predicted, will start the ball rolling for better attendance and keener interest in the next sing.

PRESBYTERIAN ASSEMBLY IS ORGANIZED

[By Associated Press]

INDIANAPOLIS, May 18.—Presbyterians of the United States of America completed the organization of their 135th general assembly today with the appointment of J. Spencer Chapman, of Philadelphia, vice moderator and the naming of standing committees.

Dr. Charles F. Wishart, the newly elector moderator, caused distinct surprise when, contrary to the usual practice, he failed to name his nearest rival, William Jennings Bryan, as chairman of the important committee on bills and overtures, the steering committee of convention.

Instead, Dr. Wishart turned to Rev. Hugh K. Walker of Los Angeles, for the chairmanship and relegated Mr. Bryan to the leadership of the less important committee of home missions. Dr. Walker's commission will pass on the overture from the Philadelphia Presbytery on the preachings of Harry Emerson Fosdick. Mr. Bryan, as a leader of the fundamentalists, is ranked among active opponents of the liberalism of Dr. Fosdick.

Dr. Clarence McArtney, of Philadelphia, who brought the Fosdick overture to the assembly, was placed far down in the list of committee chairmen, heading the committee on freed men.

Although the new moderator did not refer directly to the Fosdick case yesterday he declared that unity was the chief aim of the assembly and his committee assignments today indicated an organization which will subordinate the more conservative views of the fundamentalists and also Mr. Bryan's opinions on such scientific subjects as evolution, in the interests of a harmonious church.

MRS. PHILLIPS IS ELECTED HEAD OF PACIFIC P.-T. A.

The final meeting of the Pacific Avenue P.-T. A., held Thursday afternoon at the school, was one of unusual interest, officers for the coming year being elected as follows:

President, Mrs. Dean S. Phillips; vice president, Mrs. Charles Marshall; secretary, Mrs. Walter Stamps; treasurer, Mrs. Ralph Brown; parliamentarian, Mrs. Mae Rosenberg; auditor, Miss Circle; historian, Mrs. T. Curtis.

The session, conducted by Mrs. Rosenberg, the retiring president, opened as usual with the salute to the flag, followed by the singing of the P.-T. A. song.

Reports were then made by secretary, treasurer, historian and auditor, and Mrs. Hinthorn submitted a full report of the cafeteria to date.

Announcements were made of the federation picnic to be held June 13, and of the benefit for the Los Angeles Children's Hospital to be given Saturday at the Philharmonic.

The room count showed that the first picture had been won by Mrs. Longley's room, and the second by Miss Badour's room.

Several gifts as expressions of appreciation were then presented, Mrs. Phillips, president-elect, bestowing upon Miss Circle, who has been most helpful in P.-T. A. work, a Japanese fern basket. On behalf of the executive board, Mrs. Stamps presented to Mrs. Rosenberg a hanging basket filled with flowers.

The program included numbers by three pupils of Mrs. Nanno Woods, when she accompanied upon the piano, viz, Joseph Taylor, who executed a clever clown dance; Constance Steelman, who gave a Bo Peep dance, and Ruth Bender, who danced a "Jingle Bells" number. Mrs. Woods also announced the entertainment to be given for children and by children called "The Land of Dolls," June 7 and 8 in the high school.

Mrs. Le Roy Bosserman gave a very sincere and intimate talk along the line of juvenile court work which greatly impressed the mothers. This completed the program and the association adjourned to the court which had been beautifully decorated with baskets of yellow and blue flowers by the teachers, who were the hostesses of the day and who served tea and cake.

OPTOMETRISTS TO VISIT YOSEMITE ON MAY 28-30

YOSEMITE VALLEY, May 18—In a special train and in automobile caravans, 400 optometrists of California will arrive in the Yosemite valley, May 28 to 30, for their annual state convention, it was announced today by Dr. E. D. Crawford of Fresno, state secretary.

Optometrists from Southern California will arrive by special train from Los Angeles to Merced. From Merced they will go on the Yosemite railroad to the park. This railroad trip is heralded as one of the most scenic railroad trips in the world. About 125 optometrists and ladies are expected to arrive on the special train.

A banquet will be given for the visitors in Merced under the auspices of the Merced chamber of commerce, probably on Saturday, May 26.

While in the Yosemite valley, the optometrists will be guests at Camp Curry. During the three days of the convention business sessions will be held in the morning with educational lectures at night. The entire afternoon will be devoted to sight seeing and recreation.

Oakland likely will be the next convention city, and in accordance with the custom of selecting state officers from the convention district, next year's officers of the optometrists will be selected largely from Alameda county.

Among the principal speakers at the Yosemite convention will be Dr. Frederick Woll, professor of optometry at Columbia University; Dr. Ruth Rogers, survey expert of Oakland; Dr Harry Fuog, professor in the Los Angeles School of Optometry, and Dr. E. A. Hutchinson of Los Angeles, past president of the state association.

Present officers of the state association are: Dr. G I. Deane of Merced, president; Dr. E. D. Crawford of Fresno, secretary; Dr. C. A. Morris of Fresno, treasurer; Dr. James Hamblen of Modesto, Dr. E. H. Armstrong of Los Angeles, Dr. John W. Pugh of Dinuba, and Dr. A. N. Osborne of Turlock, vice presidents; Dr. Helen S. Baynton of Alhambra, sergeant at arms. The legislative committee includes Dr. T. A. Brombach, San Francisco; Dr. Charles H. Wood, Oakland, and Dr. Clark B. Monroe of Los Angeles.

Inquest Over Auto Accident Victim Held

A cornor's inquest over the body of Mrs. James Thompson, who was killed Tuesday, when her sedan which she was driving was struck by the Pacific Electric 5:19 car, was held this morning. A. B. Cross, H. B. Watson, J. Monzell, W. J. Severns, G. H. Wood and A. B. Short were the jurors.

After the inquest the body is to be sent to Rigby, Idaho.

"Did you hear about the defacement of Mr. Skinner's tombstone?" asked Mrs. Brown, a few days after the funeral of that eminent merchant.

"No. What was it?" inquired her neighbor, curiously.

"Some one added the word 'friend' to the epitaph."

"What was the epitaph?"

"He did his best."

It worries a woman when she expects news and it doesn't show up.

THRILLS GALORE IN "ISLE OF LOST SHIPS" AT T. D. & L.

Milton Sills, Anna Q. Nilsson, Frank Campeau and Walter Long, are the principal members of the cast of "The Isle of Lost Ships," a First National attraction produced by Mr. C. Levee and personally directed by Maurice Tourneur, which is the feature at the T. D. and L. theatre. It is based on Crittenden Marriott's famous drama of the sea. The remainder of the cast likewise leaves nothing to be desired.

Milton Sills, as the escaped convict—facing death in the electric chair—who saves the life of the beautiful young society girl when the vessel on which he is being taken back to the United States is rammed by a derelict, gives his customary strong characterization.

Miss Nilsson, as the heroine who finds herself compelled to marry within twenty-four hours, has a strenuous role which she enacts with skill and finesse.

Frank Campeau as the indomitable dectective, and Walter Long as the powerful and arrogant ruler of the little community of castaways on a strange island of ships in the center of the Sargasso Sea, are exceptionally well drawn roles.

Bert Woodruff and Aggie Herring, as Patrick and Mother Joyce, furnish exceedingly delightful comedy bits.

Director Tourneur, with the poetic touch that identifies all his pictures, has given this unusual story of the Sargasso Sea picturesquely beautiful settings. Getting off to a fast start "The Isle of Lost Ships" is replete with thrills and unusual situations galore, one of the episodes showing the little band of castaways escaping from the mysterious island in a submarine that had been washed up.

"THREE OF A KIND" ARE THESE SIDE-TIED SPORTS SUITS

It is not hard to choose the style of your sports suit this year for the accepted modes are very similar. The difficult thing is to choose the material and the color scheme. Here are three suits which show the favoritism exhibited for the finely pleated skirt of a plain light color, often pure white, and the side-tied jacket of a print, an embroidered crepe or some other novelty sports silk. All three are distinctive and yet all follow the same lines. Roshanara crepe makes the costumes at the left and right but flannel makes the clever model in the center.

Bumper Crop of Hen Fruit in Electrically Lighted Hen House

Thrifty chicken farmer uses electric lights to lengthen hens' working day. Illumination increases egg production fifty per cent, statistics show.

"Going to bed with the chickens" is not what it used to be. Like their sisters on the "Gay White Way" as long as the lights are burning they are up and doing. Then they lay and lay. John Hoerner of Whitehouse, New Jersey, keeps his hen house bright and cheery with a Western Electric power and light outfit. Consequently what used to be pin money for Mrs. Hoerner has become a real industry. Mr. Hoerner says, "The hen imigrated from equatorial countries where the hours of daylight and darkness are equal. In this environment, her reproduction and digestive systems were attuned to work on a schedule with twelve hours darkness. Her nature hasn't changed a bit but she eats and works only in the daylight hours. She cannot find food in the darkness and when she cannot eat, she cannot work. So I get 'em up at the same time and let them go to roost at the same time the year around. Two 25-watt Sunbeam Mazdas per twenty-five feet of floor space will furnish sufficient illumination."

FLAPPERS TO WEAR TUT ANKLETS

CHICAGO (United Press).—King Tut pocket flasks are the latest thing developed by the world-wide craze for Egyptian styles, P. J. Coffey, a manufacturing jeweler of Newark, told the jewelers here.

"What would old King Tut think," said Coffey, "if he awoke from his sleep of 35 centuries and learned that flasks neatly engraved with his portrait and hieroglyphic signature and filled with moonshine and other period liquor were being carried on the hip by our people? They are of sterling silver and the 'tomb motif' in ornamentation is bizarrely attractive. Prohibition has brought in a vogue for flasks and cocktail shakers as wedding gifts."

Anklets and amulets, Coffey said, were coming into vogue as a result of the Egyptian fad.

"Don't be surprised," he said, "if you see a flapper on the avenue with gold, silver, or white-gold circlets studded with semi-precious stones dangling about her ankle. They are wearing them in Paris and London and they will soon be on this side of the water.

"Egyptians of Tutankhamen's time knew nothing of diamonds. Their gems were emeralds, sapphires, rubies, carnelian, lapis lazuli, turquoise, onyx and other translucent stones. These are renewing their hold on the public. Jade is also having a wide vogue.

"Both masculine and feminine jewelry stones in color and models reflect the fashions that dazzled the cities of the Nile when the sphynx was an infant."

TIME MEANS NOT A THING TO HIM

SANTA, ANA, Cal.—(United Press).—"Are you guilty or not?" monotonously droned Justice John B. Cox, of Anaheim.

George Wilson, alleged negro speeder, answered in a dark complexioned voice:

"Tse guilty, jedge."

With a rake at the papers on his desk, Judge Cox bit off, "Thirty days."

When the import of the words struck Wilson's infant comprehension, he muttered:

"That man is sho free with my time."

But some men would rather lose a friend than the best of an argument.

Easy Lessons in Auction Bridge

Article No. 32

Discarding

There probably is no part of the play of the hand at Auction that causes more difficulty, particularly to the novice, than discarding. The rule now followed by practically all Auction players is the discard from weakness; but this rule is affected to such an extent by the particular situation and by the previous play that the ordinary player is very apt to become confused and throw his cards away with considerable lack of judgment. At certain times it is advisable to discard a high card instead of using the usual weakness discard, and this advice only confuses the novice. He fails to realize that at times high cards of a suit that cannot be made have little value, and therefore can be better spared than small cards of other suits which must be protected.

When playing against the declarer, both opponents should be alert both to protect their hands and yet give their partner proper information. Very frequently a clever player will infer from his partner's discard that certain cards are in his hand and, by playing accordingly, will save game that would have been lost otherwise. The proper discard is from weakness; that is, the first discard should be made from the suit that the player doesn't want led. In playing against a trump declaration it is very important that honors in the weaker suits be protected. For that reason it may not be advisable to discard from weakness. In such case a discard of a seven spot or higher card reverses the meaning of the discard and should be interpreted as a strength discard. In case the player has more than one discard he should always complete the information; that is, should next discard a card in the same suit lower than the high card previously discarded. For example: Suppose Hearts are trumps, leader has opened with the ten of Diamonds which was won by the declarer. With the following hand, original leader's partner should discard the eight of Clubs at his first opportunity so that if his partner again obtains the lead, he will not have to guess which suit to lead. The exact information has been given, by the discard of the eight of Clubs, that Clubs is his suit. Lead it. The hand is as follows:

Hearts — 7
Clubs — A, K, 8, 2
Diamonds — J, 7, 4, 2
Spades — 10, 7, 6, 2

The weakness discard also should be used against a No Trump declaration, with the proviso, however, that if necessary, one should show one's strong suit by discarding a card, seven spot or higher. The player having the opening lead at a No Trump indicates his strong suit, and any subsequent discard by him merely indicates that it is the one he can best spare. The partner of the opener, however, is obligated to show his strength at once, for very often a shift from the opening suit to partner's suit will save a game otherwise lost. Under such conditions don't hesitate to discard a high card at once. This always should be done when one discard from weakness does not positively show your strong suit. Never make your partner guess if you can possibly avoid doing so. Experience proves that a player is more apt to guess wrong than right, so avoid error by discarding from strength when one discard must give exact information.

In discarding from weakness, there is one point that all players should remember; that is, never give information of a weakness in a suit that will enable the declarer to finesse successfully. Very frequently the declarer has a finesse either way and is watching the discards carefully to determine which of his opponents will slip up on the discard. Too much care in discarding cannot be used. Under such conditions it should be apparent that there can be no hard and fast rule of discarding. The situation always controls the discard, so let common sense and reason determine when to deviate from the rule. First, protect your hand; second, give your partner information; third, keep your long suit if possible. No matter what system of discarding is used, an occasional trick will be lost; but that is no argument against the system.

Discard of your partner's original suit indicates no strength in your own hand, but a desire to protect the other suits. Never discard all the cards of one suit, as this indicates strength in that suit in your partner's hand. If you have an established suit and a re-entry card, discard a high card in the latter suit. Protect all four-card suits, even but nine or ten high, and bear in mind that a Jack or Ten twice guarded often will become a stopper. Watch the declarer's discards and protect the suit which he refuses to discard. The declarer should endeavor to conceal both his strength and weakness; clever discarding may often mislead the opponents.

METROPOLITAN PLAY TO BE SEEN HERE

Novelty in Dramatics to Be Given at Tuesday Club Auditorium

"The Demi-Virgin," a metropolitan production, has been booked for the near future to be presented to the people of Glendale at the Tuesday Afternoon club auditorium, and will be a new venture in spoken dramatic productions in this city. "The Demi-Virgin" will be played by Nancy Fair and a metropolitan cast. Tickets will be on sale at the box office Saturday, Monday and Tuesday from 10 o'clock on.

This play, during its long run at the Eltinge theater, New York, became one of the most sensationally successful plays in recent years. It was written by Avery Hopwood, the gifted writer of farce, and has the sparkle, spice and snap of a French farce, tempered to the taste of American audiences. The play is said to be a rollicking succession of howls and shrieks of laughter.

"The Demi-Vrigin" was originally produced by A. H. Woods at the Eltinge theater, New York, and after a run of one year there it was taken to Chicago for six months, where its great metropolitan success was duplicated.

They had had chicken for dinner in a restaurant.

"You see," he explained, as he showed her the wishbone, "you take hold here. Then we both make a wish and pull, and when it breaks the one who has the biggest part of it will have his or her wish granted."

"But I don't know what to wish for," she protested.

"Oh, you can think of something," he said.

"No I can't," she replied. "I can't think of anything I want very much."

"Well, I'll wish for you," he exclaimed.

"Will you really?" she asked.

"Yes, indeed," he replied.

"Well, there is no use fooling with the old wishbone," she returned with a glad smile. "You can have me."

A man doesn't realize how small the world is until he tries to dodge his creditors.

SALMON FLEET ALASKA BOUND

[By Associated Press]

SAN FRANCISCO, May 18.—The salmon fishing fleet has cleared the Golden Gate and the sturdy little ships are now enroute to Bristol bay, Alaska, where the season opens July 1. Red salmon fishing in Bristol bay lasts only thirty days and the ships of the various canning companies will be concentrated in the bay until August 1.

Last year the fleet of 800 vessels in the Alaskan waters brought a pack to the canneries valued at nearly $40,000,000. More than $70,000,000 is invested in the Alaskan salmon industry and 27,500 persons are normally engaged in the work of fishing and canning.

A total of 7,240,185 cases of salmon were caught last year, distributed as follows: Alaska, 4,501,428; British Columbia, 1,290,326; Siberia 718,184; Columbia River, 392,174; Puget Sound, 248,729, and outside streams, 89,344.

Since 1878 the canned salmon pack in Alaska has reached 86,371,075 cases. The next largest catch is 29,882,971 cases from British Columbia since 1878, and 22,784,458 from the Puget Sound since 1877. The Columbia River has yielded 22,541,101 cases since 1866.

HALF BILLION IN IRISH REBEL LOOT

DUBLIN, May 18 (United Press)—It will cost upwards of $500,000,000 to repair the damage done by De Valera's "irregulars" since the foundation of the Irish Free State, according to a statement made by Kevin O'Higgins, Minister of Home Affairs.

Numerous serious financial and legal difficulties face the Free State authorities, acording to the same official, not the least of which are to decide "who owns what and why, and how?"

"There are people who got rich quickly during the last ten months," declared O'Higgins, "and who have in their possession property and land to which they have not a scrap of legal title."

The Free State authorities have recovered much looted property, but it has not been easy to establish the actual owners thereof, and many looters have converted their ill-gotten gains into cash with which they have made big purchases of land, etc. Endless lawsuits are promised.

RAINBOW CHORUS, TO BE GIVEN AT BAPTIST CHURCH

Tonight at the evangelistic meeting at the First Baptist church the "Rainbow Chorus" of boys and girls will sing. These young people have been in training and the program they will present tonight promises to be very unique and interesting. Miss Rita Gould, unusual contralto, will be in charge of the music and will contribute a solo. The evangelist, Miss Amy Lee Stockton, will preach on the subject, "Right About Face."

Last night Miss Stockton spoke on the "Return of Jesus Christ." Taking for her text the 27th verse of the 24th chapter of Matthew, For as the lightning cometh forth from the east and shineth even unto the west, so shall be the coming of the Son of Man." The evangelist called attention to the comparison between the lightning and the things characterizing the return of the Master. Her message in part, follows:

"Jesus is coming again! And the fact that He is coming ought to be the sustaining power in the lives of His people. The second coming of the Master is not to be confused with death, for death is not His coming to us but our going to be with Him. It is not to be confused with the descent of the Holy Spirit, for on the day when Peter was filled with the Spirit, and gave forth that great message, he referred to the return of the Master as an event still in the future. It is not to be confused with the destruction of the city of Jerusalem, for the events that have been prophesied as taking place when the Master comes did not in any wise take place when the Holy City was destroyed. The return of Jesus Christ is to be an outward, visible, personal appearing.'

The comparison made to the lightning in regard to this event was concerning the glory, the suddenness, and the purpose; namely, the lightning comes to purify, and in its coming there is also destruction. Purification of His people will be complete when Jesus comes and there must also be the punishment of the unrighteous.

Air castles are properly built on a foundation of impossibilities.

Imperial Shipments to Be Plentiful in About Ten Days, Chaffee's Reports

Cantaloupes from Imperial Valley are just appearing on the vegetable market and will be plentiful in about ten days, according to the information given out by Chaffee's. Imperial tomatoes are in now, also, but are quoted at a higher price than they will be in a short time.

The market for new potatoes is very unsteady at the present time, it is reported, and no sweet potatoes are available. The new celery is just coming in. Local lettuce is fair, but the northern is of an extra fancy quality.

Cherries are extra fancy at present. Northern asparagras is much higher, but the local is coming in fine. Summer squash is becoming cheaper as the hot weather comes on, and peas are beginning to be of exceptional quality. All beans are plentiful.

DOUBLE SIZE OF STORE DURING ONE YEAR

During a year's time, the Zaun market and grocery at 220 East Broadway has found it necessary to double the floor space, due to the increase in trade, according to Paul Zaun, who, with Ethel M. Zaun, owns the place of business.

The Zaun market and grocery offers a complete line of groceries, meats and vegetables, and the proprietors state that business is on the upward trend.

'SHE DISH WASHES HER LIFE AWAY,' BEECHER SAID

Article from Pen of Great Preacher Written Many Years Ago

The timely article printed below, is from the pen of the late Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, who was pastor of Park church (Congregational), of Elmira, New York, for more than 40 years. He and Henry Ward Beecher, the great Brooklyn tabernacle minister, and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, famous author, were children of Lyman Beecher of Farmington, Conn. Rev. Thomas K. Beecher was a warm friend of Mrs. Anna M. L. Morrison, 227 West Colorado street, Glendale, who furnished the reprint of the article in question. She is the widow of Rev. A. E. Morrison, a revered minister of this city, who died a few years ago. He was the founder and first pastor of the Pacific avenue M. E. church. The date of this writing of Rev. Thomas K. Beecher is not known, but it appeared in print more than 20 years ago. It is peculiarly appropriate just now, in connection with the recent observance of Mothers' Day. The article, which was headed "She" when it first appeared in print, follows:

She is away—absent. When a man says "she," he is understood. To every "he" there is but one "she," or should be. And "she" is away, leaving us to thought and good resolutions. Like Hawthorne, we have been washing dishes. Says he:

"The washing of dishes does seem to me the most absurd and unsatisfactory business that I ever undertook. If, when once washed, they would remain clean forever and ever (which they ought in all reason to do, considering how much trouble it is), there would be less occasion to grumble, but no sooner is it done than it requires to be done again. On the whole, I have come to the resolution not to use more than one dish at each meal."

The quiet fidelity with which "she" will dish-wash her life away for "him" is a marvel of endurance and grace. Just here is the servitude of woman heaviest—no sooner is her work done than it requires to be done again. Man works up jobs, ends them, and takes his pay. The pay can be translated into something else desirable. A man works all day and draws pay for his work. This pay allures him, as oats a horse homeward bound. Thus men work by terms and jobs—and, although the work is endless as to quantity, yet, when cut up thus into terms and jobs, we men go heartily on our journey and count the milestones.

Not so with our mates. "She" mends our socks, and we put our irrepressible toe upon the darned spot, and she darns it again. "She" washes for the family, and the family makes haste to send back the same garments to be washed again. "She" puts the room in order, and we get it ready to be "rid up" again. The same socks, the same washing, the same room every time. She has no successive jobs, no terms, no payday, no tally stick of life. She washes the same dish three hundred and sixty-five—yes, three times three hundred and sixty-five times every year. No wonder she breaks it and is glad of it! What a relief to say: "I've done that dish."

Not only have we, like Hawthorne, washed dishes, but also we cooked and served and helped eat a meal (with bated appetite because of cooking), and now we are astonished at the number of thoughts, and steps, and acts, and processes involved in a very plain supper. Only two of us, jolly cronies, caring nothing for style, and needing only a very plain supper. And we had it, and with it came wisdom.

Gentlemen, all! We go into a room and see a table ready set. It seems to us one thing—a supper. It is, in fact, from fifty to two hundred things, taken down one by one for us to use, and for "her" to wash and put back whence they came. There is a plate of biscuit. To that plate of simplicity we, with our hands and feet, brought together a new, quick fire for baking, viz: kindling wood, raking out stove, and hod of coal. Flour from the bin, shortening from the gravy-dip down cellar, salt from one box, sugar from another, soda from the jar, acid (tartaric) from a bottle, a spoon, a pitcher of water, a dripping pan, and a tin pan for mixing these ingredients, and after all, happening to forget the things for ten minutes, we burned the biscuit half through in a way which we men reckon quite unpardonable in a cook. Meanwhile that one plate of biscuit added to the eternal dish-wash two spoons, two pans, one plate, and a little cup. Just a little piece of steak contributed eight pieces to the dish-wash. A few strawberries sent in six pieces to be got ready to soil again. Four eggs impressed themselves on six separate articles.

Gentlemen, we began at ten minutes of six, and at quarter to eight we found ourselves triumphant—everything cleared away except the dishcloth. You see, we washed up the breadpan, the dishpan and the sink, scalding them all (and our fingers, too), and dried them off with the dishcloth. Now, where on earth can we go to wash out that dishrag? Not in the clean pan? Not over the clean, dry sink! We stood aghast for five minutes, and then wadded up the rag, round like a snowball, and tucked it into the far corner of the sink, and shut down the cover. Our sink has a cover. But that rag, though hidden, was heavy on our consdience. "She" never would have done so. We have seen clear dishcloths, but how they wash them passes our skill.

And so, as we said, "she" is away, leaving us to thought and good resolutions. We shall be a wiser and a better man for at least two days after her return. And, whenever we stop to think, shall rank a successful housekeeper and home-maker as a worker second to none on the scale of achievement and deserving. Her services are like the air, the rain and the sunshine, indispensable, yet too often enjoyed without thanksgiving.

SHORT SELLING IS DANGEROUS

Babson Warns Speculators That Millions of Dollars Threatened

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., May 18, 1923.—The recent bear raids in the stock market have led a large number of small speculators to believe that good stock market days are over. Popular fancy in this quarter is turning to short selling. Since the technical position of the market is being undermined by the move, Roger W. Babson's warning against this practice issued today is particularly timely.

"I do not pretend to be able to forecast the short swings of the stock market," says Mr. Babson, "but I do know that the short interest developed since the recent bear raids—probably the largest in recent years—has reached a point where it is very dangerous. This is largely due to the fact that speculators all over the country have been carried away by the prevailing bearish propaganda and have gone 'short' just as they buy stocks when surface conditions look optimistic. It looks as easy to sell as to buy and it is my guess that the majority of these speculators do not understand the position that short selling places them in.

"Let us see what happens. If you gave your broker an order to sell 100 shares of some stock short, he actually borrows the stock from one of his other customers who owns it, or from some other broker. He actually sells this borrowed stock for you. You put up the cash to guarantee its present value or a margin deposit to protect your broker. If the stock happens to go up, you are called on for more margin. If you can't cover it, the broker buys the stock in at the market and returns it to the original owner. You stand the loss. So far short selling presents only the dangers attending ordinary marginal buying—a few points in the wrong direction and you are wiped out.

"It must also be borne in mind, however, that you borrowed the stock and that you did not borrow it for any given time. The owner can call on you at any time for it and you must return it. If your broker can borrow some more for you somewhere else, all right; but if he can't you must buy the stock in the open market and return it, no matter how high its price nor how much cash you have to protect your margins. Moreover, if these 100 shares pay a dividend which you are short of, then you must also pay that.

"Multiply your own short position by several thousand and the greatest danger of the practice is apparent. The short interest is very soon larger than the number of shares of the given stock that are for sale. Prices advance two or three points and a few of the shorts cannot put up the increased margins. Brokers go into the market to buy the stock, to return it. The demand raises prices a bit, then there are more shorts that are forced to cover. The market strengthens and brokers rush in to get the securities they must return—behold, there are no more for sale. Prices skyrocket and the speculators who were short are wiped out. It is interesting to note here that there is no limit to your losses on a short sale. If you buy a stock at 50 you cannot possibly lose more than 50 points, but if you sell it short at 50 it may go to 100 or 500 or even to 1000 and you must cover and stand the loss.

"The short interests, for instance, were caught in Stutz in April 1920. The stock had been selling between 100 and 145. The moment the short sales exceeded the floating or available supply, prices started to climb and went to 724. The New York stock exchange then stepped in but the short interests had to settle at the rate of $550 a share. The same stock may be had today around 20.

"More recently the corner in Piggly Wiggly has illustrated once more the extremely weak position of the speculator who is short. This stock had been trading between 40 and 64. The majority of the short interests probably sold it around 50. When the stock was called for there was none to be had. Prices soared and it was taken off the exchange. Settlement was finally made at the rate of $100 a share.

"These spectacular cases illustrate our point but do not represent the great losses resulting from short selling. Millions of dollars are endangered today on the short side of the present market, a growing accumulation that gets shakier as it piles higher. A rise of three to five points would start the drive that would practically wipe these interests out. Moreover, fundamental conditions do not indicate that business has gone to pot. Business is still good. Conditions are against the short sellers and their chances to win dwindle as the short interest grows.

"In fact, general business, as reflected in the Babsonchart, is still above normal by four per cent," concluded Mr. Babson, "and will doubtless continue into 1924. There is nothing in one fundamental situation to indicate that the stock market has reached its top. Short selling at best is dangerous—short selling against fundamental conditions is apt to be suicidal."

MILLION-YEAR-OLD FRENCH PATRIOTS

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS, May 18. (United Press).—Geological experts, after detailed study of 30 or 40 skeletons of men, women and children, unearthed recently at Creil, near Paris, have exploded the theory that they were those of victims of the religious wars of Henry IV., proving instead that they are the remains of pre historic man, going back to the latest period of the stone age.

Tutankhamen, the discovery of whose tomb in the Valley of the Kings has aroused such intense interest throughout the world, was born probably a million years later than those people whose skeletons have just been brought to light.

They belonged to the epoch in which man had learned the art of polishing stones to make weapons and tools. Priceless specimens of these have been found in the soil around the grotto which served as a sepulchre. They include lances knives and other cutting instruments, arrow heads and even a saw, all admirably carved and polished. There are also bone awls and several pendants of greenish hard slate, punched with holes.

"The people of the neolithic, or polished stone age," said M. Louis Giraux, former vice president of the Prehistoric society of France, who made an exhaustive report for the International Anthropological institute, "buried their dead in various ways. Sometimes they were cremated. Sometimes, as in the present case, they were subjected to a process which destroyed the flesh but left the bones, which were then interred in grottoes similar to that at Creil.

"In the construction of the grottoes the excavators naturally used stone instruments — flint being most in vogue—to dig in to the hard material known to geologists as 'Ypres sand.' Certain layers of this sand are especially hard, forming what we call 'tables.' One of these 'tables' becomes the ceiling of the grotto and you can imagine its strength when you remember that it has supported the weight of 50 feet of rock resting above it for all these countless centuries. Slabs of limestone closed the entrance. It is a great pity that the grotto at Creil could not be preserved intact."

'ZITO AMERICANO' IS SLOGAN IN ATHENS

Inscribed on Warehouse at Eleusis Where stores Are Kept

ATHENS (By Mail) — "Zito Americano" (Long Live America) is the inscription on a big sign at the side of the entrance to a good-sized warehouse at Eleusis, some fifteen miles from the heart of Athens. And if one looks inside of the warehouse the reason for and origin of the sign becomes at once apparent, for it shelters some two hundred or more refugees from Asia Minor who have been receiving food from the American Red Cross.

But during the daytime only the women with children, or the aged are to be found at the warehouse. Such few men as there are among the group, and it was the men who put up the sign that the women had made and all of the able-bodied women who have no children may be found on the farms of the countryside. This unusual bit of industry was brought about by a local committee which was organized by Captain John H. Dawson of Washington, D. C., who is field manager for the district. Acting on instructions from Colonel William N. Haskell, American Red Cross Commissioner to Greece, only those women with children, the aged or sick were excused from trying to find work.

The local committee at Eleusis, which included a managing director of a factory and the leading men of the village, at once assumed the job of becoming an employment bureau, and food for the able-bodied persons was shut off. Carrying out the "clean-up" campaign of the American Red Cross, thhe refugees of Eleusis now rival the townspeople in the cleanliness of their homes, and disease has been checked.

It was because the visits of the American Red Cross workers were generally unannounced that the the refugees of Eleusis now rival constant sentiments by their sign "Zito Americano," in gratitude for the aid given them.

LEGAL SUCCOR FOR MEXICANS

[By Associated Press]

TUCSON, Ariz., May 18.—Announcement of definite plans for the organization of a league for the defense of Mexicans charged with violation of the laws of the United States and launching of a drive to secure 5000 members within a period of two months, was made here recently by F. E. Schmidt, secretary to Henry V. Anaya, former Mexican consul here and now grand secertary of the Alianza Hispano-Americano.

Organization of the league, declares the secretary, is for the purpose of providing a legal defense to which Mexicans are entitled when charged with violation of the laws of this country. Prejudice against Mexicans in criminal cases has, in the past, caused the judgments against them to be particularly heavy, Mr. Schmidt indicated.

EX-VETERANS RATING IS HIGH IN SCHOOL

MISSOULA, Mont., May 18.—Vocational students, former soldiers, at the University of Montana, averaged three-tents of one per cent higher in their studies than regular students last semester, according to records of the university. Some of the vocational students had been out of school from ten to twenty years.

Truths in Epigram

Nobility of birth commonly abateth industry.—Bacon.

What is more delightful than cluttered ease!—Cicero.

The highest problem of every art is by means of appearances to produce the illusion of a loftier reality.—Goethe.

The essence of free government consists in an effectual control of rivalries.—John Adams.

ENEMIES OF LABOR

Sympathy for the cause of labor is general. This is natural, since almost everybody has to work for a living. At the same time there are many things done in the name of labor, with which it is impossible to have sympathy. These things are not done by agencies that have the good of labor at heart. They must be ascribed in many instances to personal greed that takes the opportunity thus to live without toil. In other words, the professional laborer, the man who poses as the representative of the worker, and, ostensibly in behalf of the wage earner, stirs up contention, cripples industry. and creates idleness where had been the sound of progress, is more the enemy of labor than of capital. He may hamper the capitalist for a time, but he may reduce the laborer to immediate want, and this he often does.

In other instances the malcontents, as for example the I. W. W. group, have no mind to the benefit of either side. Their plan is wholly destructive, based on a misconception of the plainest facts. Among these facts is that in a sense labor and capital must be co-operative. One cannot thrive without the other. The banishing of prosperity would be equally disastrous to both. The essence of the I. W. W. activity is political, and the politics poisonous. There is no plan of bettering the situation for anybody. The promoters of discord do not want the situation bettered. They want it reduced to the bolshevist level where all share wretchedness in common. They are not wise enough to realize that, whereas now they could earn good livings if they desired, under conditions that they strive to bring about, there would be no good livings.

These pestilent advocates of mischief care nothing as to the pay men are getting. No scale of wages could be satisfactory to them. They plan to abolish wages, and the ability to pay wages. Thus they seek to instill discontent into the minds of workers who have every reason for being satisfied. They display malign purpose, and a certain cunning, but they sadly lack intelligence. If the labor with which they interfere could be made to realize the evil potency of these fellows, they would be utterly discredited, cast out, and permitted to starve if too lazy to work.

HERE AND HEREAFTER

Sir Conan Doyle and his performing troupe of ghosts are again honoring this section by a visit. The gentleman always will be welcome. Even his ghosts, tractable, cultured, and greatly devoted to their distinguished associates in the flesh, are harmless. Let them cut their airy capers.

Nobody would assume that Doyle is insincere. It is fair to admit that he believes all he states. It does not follow that there is the slightest obligation to accept his conclusions. He has undisputed right to the opinion that he is correct; the right to the opinion that he is in error, may as freely be entertained by others. This neither rends friendship nor breaks boncs.

Sir Conan has conjured up the sort of future that pleases himself. Books descriptive of heaven have been written. Sermons have been delivered on the theme. None is looked upon as authentic. The earth-weary individual, taking a flight of fancy, goes whither inclination leads. He returns having seen nothing, learned nothing, and there is nothing for him to impart to his followers. Each one of them is entitled equally, to pleasing conjecture.

Faith in a future existence is instinctive and general. It is found among savages, and among the most highly cultivated peoples. It involves faith in God, and faith that the universe is being guided along eternal courses by an intelligence so far beyond mortal ken that efforts to understand it even faintly, are futile. There are subtle forces, too, that baffle comprehension. Doyle thinks he has them analyzed and labelled. Perhaps he has been deluded by the tricks of the conjuror. Anyhow, it is his delight to project his mind into the unknown, or to think he has done so, and he has become laden by impressions that he accepts as demonstrated facts. All very interesting, but instructive only as the study of individual psychology.

CORRECT SPEECH

An amateur philosopher remarks tersely "Grammar is the varnish of speech." By "grammar' in this connection, doubtless he means the correct use of words rather than a classroom study. The quotation has a seeming wisdom that fails to withstand even mild analysis.

The purpose of language is to convey thought. This is best conveyed when words are well chosen, with habitual consideration for nuances of meaning. Of course the form must be grammatical, but this is not akin to the laying on of a coat of varnish. The spirit of correctness must permeate and shape the whole structure. It is far more important than a coat of varnish on the outside. Indeed, the analogy suggested by the amateur philosopher fails utterly.

An imperfect material product may be so covered with varnish as to glitter alluringly, and conceal defects. The maker of piano cases might employ it to hide a knot, or a blemish in the grain. Nothing similar may be done with written or spoken words. They have to be accepted as uttered. They do not lend themselves to the process of embellishment. As they enter into the composition of the completed work each performs its full office. Grammar, in the sense it is mentioned by the philosopher, renders better service than a similar amount of unkempt and carelessly arranged sentences possibly could do. It is not a varnish. It is an index to the intelligence of the author, and by it may be determined, in part, the value of that which he says. If one is told, however, that an idea that has no value may be given an apparent value by the beauty of its verbal setting, the information may be dismissed as groundless.

Arrest of a man on the charge of selling large tracts of Canadian land to which he never held title is announced. There is small occasion for investors to be caught by this type of fraud. In every community are reliable realty dealers, handling city and country property.

Russian bolshevists are correct in saying that the world does not learn the whole truth about them. Gradually, however, the world is learning despite the rigid censorship maintained by the soviet regime.

And every woman is proud of her husband—for a time.

If a woman wears anything that is comfortable she is usually ashamed of it.

Scrambling the Golden Eggs

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Americans are at once the most creative and the most destructive people in the whole world.

How shall we explain it? Perhaps on the hypothesis that the vandals believe that somebody else will arise and replace what they have ruthlessly destroyed.

Estelle Lawton Lindsey

But nobody can replace the wild life that has been sacrificed to the killing instincts of idlers; and it will take money, time and much devoted labor to replace the wild flowers that are now being totally destroyed through the collecting mania that seems to inspire our automobile brigade.

The wild flowers of California have been so glorious, so abundant, so varied and so distinctive that their fame has gone across the world hand in hand with the fame of the state. The gold of the poppies is as well known as the gold dug from the mountains by the Argonauts while yucca, the owl's clover, wild rhubarb, the sand verbena, the wild lupin and numerous brilliant blossoms which carpet the earth during the California spring months make a glory of beauty that gladdens the eyes of all who can see.

But they without exception will within a few months pass, perhaps, to come no more.

Sunday my husband and I were driving along one of the automobile roads south of Los Angeles when we came to a carpet of flowers many acres in extent. Beside the roadway were vehicles of every description and the owners of them and their guests were out in the fields gathering the blossoms by the ton. They seemed inspired with a phobia of possession, for little thought was required to convince them that these dainty blooms would fade and die long before came to the city.

Every flower plucked meant seeds destroyed. Year after year this happens. Last spring in the desert, at blooming time, I met dozens of automobiles simply laden with flowers, many clinging to the shrubs which had borne them, uprooted in toto, to gratify a temporary passion for possession.

Next year there will be fewer blooms along the boulevards and within a measurably short time, unless the legislature takes steps to protect the wild flowers, there will be nothing left of the glory of color that has made the California landscape as lovely as it is distinctive.

Is it not better to know that annually you can look at the wild flowers in their glory than it is to take a few drooping bunches home to die within a few hours?

Truly he who sees enjoys possession as surely as he who uproots and destroys.

This destruction of one of the natural assets of California is a tragedy that should be prevented, by law if necessary, and in the meantime should be curbed by an organized campaign of education.

The people of California own the wild flowers as they own the holly; and they should not permit a few vandals to dispossess them.

Perhaps the plan to set aside one day each year as wild flower day, as proposed by Albert E. Stillman of San Diego and endorsed by Supervisor Charlton of the Forest Reserve is a good way to begin. Let's all get back of it.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

A COMMON SPECIMEN

(Find the error in this article.)

It is not difficult to collect specimens of bad English if one is alert. A good hunting ground is the "Main Street" of any city, town, or village.

Not long ago, a group of young girls were chattering and blocking the sidewalk when out of the jumble of conversation flew the following, which was immediately captured, killed, and placed in the museum of "The Right Word":

"It was him, all right."

Him, as used in the foregoing sentence, is the wrong word. Her, me, us, or them in the same kind of construction would be wrong words also.

The following seutences are correct: It was he; It was she; It was I; It was they.

Yesterday's Error

Wrong: It is hoped that today's discussion will excite others to send in their problems . . .

Right: It is hoped that today's discussion will encourage others to send in their problems . . .

Vocabulary

The adjective pungent may be applied to anything that has the power to affect the nerves of sensation, as by pricking, stinging, or piercing. It may be something that is acrid or biting, affecting the sense of taste; as, a pungent acid: something titillating or stimulating, affecting the sense of smell; as, pungent snuff: something painful or stinging to the touch; as, pungent thorns. Then, a pungent remark may affect the mind or feelings and cause pain; and pungent sarcasm or pungent gossip is of a sharply satirical character; acrimonious; caustic; keen; racy.

Queries

Beatrice Adler: "Please be so kind as to advise which is the right word, who or whom, to be used in the following sentence, and the reason for its selection: "To be specific we refer to the Italians, the Hungarians, the Spaniards, the French, the Jews, (who or whom), we believe, constitute a market that ought to be cultivated. . . ."

Answer: The right word is who. This is clear when you realize that "we believe" is parenthetical, and you have "who constitute a market."

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

JAMES W. FOLEY

The house on the rock.
The house on the sand.
You remember that parable.
Very simple, very truthful, very effective.
One that needs to be often recalled.
And the truth of it taken to ourselves.
For parables are preachments of truth.

* * *

A preachment of truth is more than a mere setting of thoughts in words.
It is more than a framed or pictured something to hang on a wall.
More than a prettily lettered motto.
It is a vital and living thing to enter into your life and being.

* * *

If bread is the staff of life truth is the staff of education and progress.
For by truth we live and progress.
By error we stumble and fall.
By falsehood we die.
So it is essential that we live by the truth if we are to make progress.

* * *

Human souls are sometimes houses on the rock.
Souls founded on the truth.
Built on solid foundations.
And they are souls that abide.
The souls builded like houses on the rock.

* * *

And human souls are sometimes houses on the sand.
They shift and slide and rock and finally collapse.
The foundation is insecure and unstable.
The superstructure may be elaborate.
The spires and towers and gables may be beautiful.
But all are as naught without a secure foundation.

* * *

So in the matter of education, it is important that we build on a secure foundation.
The university may teach a man to do this or that or the other great thing.
It may teach him to build the house, to tunnel the earth, to bridge the chasm, to flood the desert with water.
But it must teach him as well why these things are to be done.
And it must teach him as well the spirit in which they are to be done.

* * *

That teaching that neglects the moral fibre of being is as the house builded on the sand.
That teaching that emphasizes the moral fibre of being is as the house builded on the rock.
The teaching that enables a man to gain wealth and that has failed to teach him to use his wealth for the good of men and society is faulty teaching.

* * *

Teaching that enables a man to gain property by doing moral wrong is faulty teaching.
Teaching that enables a man to build great structures for pride and self-aggrandizement alone is faulty teaching.
Teaching that fails to inspire humanity with a desire to help its common humanity.
Teaching that puts self before society.
Teaching that would gain wealth at the cost of self respect.
All this is faulty teaching.

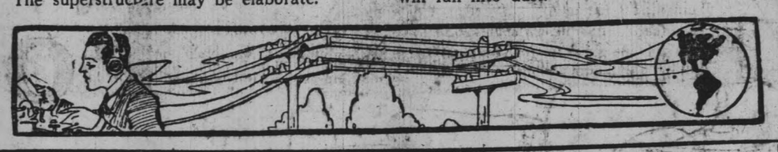
All of these teachings are the building of houses upon sand.
For in times of trial and storm the foundations will crumble.
And the spirit that seeks to live by them will fall into dust.



Songs of the Poets

To the Terrestrial Globe.—By William Schwenck Gilbert

Roll on, thou ball, roll on!
Through pathless realms of space
Roll on!
What though I'm in a sorry case?
What though I cannot meet my bills?
What though I swallow endless pills?
Never YOU mind!
Roll on!

Roll on, thou ball, roll on!
Through seas of inky air
Roll on!
It's true I've got no shirts to wear;
It's true my butcher bill is due;
It's true my prospects all look blue—
But don't let that unsettle you
Never YOU mind!
Roll on!

THE WEAKNESS OF DEMOCRACY

By DR. FRANK CRANE

EXCELLENT as it may be, democracy has its weaknesses.

One of these is its inability to carry out a consistent policy in its relations to foreign nations.

To most of us the situation in the Ruhr is baffling. We cannot understand what either France or Germany is up to. That is to say, we cannot make the program of either nation square with reason.

Both nations seem to be headed for financial suicide. Both nations are treating an economic question with hysteria instead of intelligence.

France insists that Germany shall pay and at the same time is afraid to allow Germany to become strong enough to pay for fear that will imply that she will become strong enough to attack.

Germany has debased her currency and seems bent on crippling her financial ability.

The key to this difficulty is suggested by Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, economist of the Chase National bank, in a recent bulletin. He points out that both of these countries are democracies and that our fundamental fallacy in interpreting the issue consists in trying to rationalize the conduct of a weak democratic government.

"The unfortunate part of the whole situation," he says, "seems to be that the government of France has done things which its ablest leaders did not approve, under pressure of public sentiment, and as a means of holding the government together."

"If the French and German governments," he continues, "were both strong governments firmly intrenched in the confidence of the people and able to formulate and carry out wise plans looking toward long-run national interests, the problem would be immensely simpler than it is. The fact is, however, that each of these governments rests on unstable and shifting domestic political foundations. Each ministry depends on more or less temporary alliances of groups in its parliament. Neither is in a position to do boldly and resolutely those things which its leaders might conceive to be best for the long-time interest of the country."

A great difficulty in a democracy is that its rulers have to pay so much attention to holding their jobs that they are seriously hampered when they try to do anything else.

The same situation holds to some extent in the United States. Doubtless our present administration has clear and definite ideas of what it would like to do, but it must always be looking back to see whether public opinion, which is moved more by catchwords than by reason, will support it.

We constantly speak of nations and their acts as though each nation had a definite unity of national purpose. We speak of the French as being militaristic, of the Germans as trying to get out of their debts, of the English as scheming for imperialism, and the like.

This is largely fictitious. The trouble with all of them is that they have no national purpose. Internationally, the world is adrift.

As Dr. Anderson says, "The great tragedy of the post-war world is the dissipation of definite purpose, the breaking up of unity of action into unorganized, antagonistic activities."

If a leader such as Briand or Wilson arises who has a distinct, clear policy and purpose, it does not take us long to drive him out.

Any one of half a dozen business men in the United States, England, France, or Germany, if he were allowed to map out a national policy and carry it through, could settle the whole matter and bring the world back to economic soundness in a very short time, for the recuperative power of mankind is enormous.

But it is precisely this coherent and continuous policy that democracy prevents.

PROHIBITION AND HEALTH

[Springfield Union]

An increase of 25 per cent in the number of drug stores in New York City since prohibition went into effect might lead the cynical to infer that prohibition is making a lot of persons sick. And the explanation given out at prohibition headquarters in New York would strengthen that inference, for it is pointed out that a druggist could make legitimately $5000 profit a year by selling liquor on prescription, and, of course, the prescription is prima facie evidence of a case of sickness. It throws an interesting light on the effect of prohibition on the public health.

WHY CAUSE TROUBLE?

[Brooklyn Eagle]

With no alphabet and a vocabulary of less than five hundred words, that "unknown race" discovered by American hunters in French Indo-China enjoys partial immunity from Cacoethes Loquendi, full immunity from Cacoethes Scribendi, and would find a Congressional Record volume fully as readable as any novel. Why try to introduce civilization where it is not wanted?

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The Jacksonville Journal is the second Florida paper to come to hand with denunciation of the outrageous convict system that disgraces that state.

HENRY JAMES

Recently a southern paper was awarded a valuable medal for its services to the public. It had waged a battle against the ku klux. The Journal and the Times-Union merit a medal apiece. They are making a valiant protest.

While these papers are demanding the punishment of murder committed by the masters of convict-slaves, and abolition of the slavery detail of flogging, there still are legislators in Florida who contend that only with the whip may prisoners be kept in subjection. It matters not to the legislators that the whip in the hands of brutal masters means that the victims will be flogged to death.

Such an attitude on the part of a legislator is a confession of brutality and stupidity.

The agitation started upon revelation that a young man arrested for stealing a ride, and not charged with any graver offense, had been murdered by flogging in a convict camp, and his body denied decent burial.

Florida is not so much worse than other places that it has to resort to extraordinary means to protect itself against the casual visitor who arrives by freight. It has, in common with other states, the right to be civilized.

The papers are making a brave fight, and doubtless in the end will win it.

Every indication is that southern California is to have more visitors this summer than ever before at that season. It took people a long time to learn that the finest weather accessible anywhere in the United States is here, and that the quality is maintained the year around.

Two deputies of the sheriff's office have been given a one-way vacation, meaning that the beginning is its only end. The episode does not come as a surprise. That there had been something rotten in connection with the criminal department of the county had for a long time been a matter of common suspicion, almost of common knowledge.

From the initial evidence, it would appear that a notorious prisoner had attempted to corrupt some of his keepers, and had succeeded. The corruption did not benefit him. They took his bribe and neglected to give quid pro quo. This was corruption raised to the nth power.

The scandal goes back at least to the time when the doors were opened for Clara Phillips. Everybody was aware that she had help from within the prison. There had been manifest looseness in the treatment of such prisoners as Obenchain and Burch.

There is small comfort in the situation for the prisoner who asserts that he has been double-crossed. He is under sentence for life for one crime, and even if he was "framed" in this instance, as he says, there are enough additional crimes charged against him to win him sentence that, running consecutively, would consume a period of five hundred years.

Men who habitually deal with criminals have to possess strong character, or in the end they lose their sense of moral values. It is hard to have contact with fire and not be burned, or to handle a tarred stick without becoming besmirched.

News columns record devastation by the elements. Tornado, fire and flood are elements that civilization has learned only in small part to control, or that remain totally beyond control.

So contradictory are the reports of the Chinese bandit outrages that the exact truth is not likely to be clear until the victims have reached home.

Enough is known, however, to show that the Chinese bandit, when he really starts anything, is quite capable of excess, barren of gentle impulses, and a creature sedulously to be avoided by the timid.

Every time there is reported the discovery of a fossilized human body of great stature, the old Cardiff giant fake comes to mind.

So far as science has proof, there is no indication that there ever existed a race of men larger in body than the present popular sizes. Here and there is the freak, near eight feet in height, but something is the matter with his glands. His bigness is the result of disease.

Perhaps the explorers who profess to have found three giants turned to stone, have stumbled upon the remains of an ancient sideshow.

All the judge has to do is to deny the request, and compliment the prisoner on possession of nerve.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

My old friend, the Corn-Fed Hermit, got back to town today. When he is where he can hear the street cars rattle and read by electric light he is as unhappy as a dog in flea time. But he rarely stays out in the country more than a week or so. He says he cannot stand his own society.

He said that he had been visiting around in Iowa, where the complaint of the farmers is more than ordinarily well founded and strident. They are suffering more than most folks by the economic upset following the war, he said. The prices of things they sell have gone down, but, anticipating that these prices would keep up, many of them loaded up with land at the top of the market. Now they must keep it. No wonder they're discontented.

"Why did you send Brookhart to the senate?" he asked one farmer. The farmer replied by a parable:

"Last year's state fair in Iowa," said he, "was the biggest we ever held. The biggest day was the one on which two old passenger engines were turned loose under steam to collide with each other. Every farm automobile in Iowa was on the grounds, I think. Some of us drove 150 miles."

The Corn-Fed Hermit said he didn't quite understand what the farmer was getting at. He said that the colliding of engines under full steam is an old stunt. Nothing happens, except that the engines knock thunder out of each other.

"Listen," said his friend from the Iowa prairies. "That's just it. That explains Brookhart. In our present temper there isn't a farmer in Iowa who won't drive 150 miles any day to see hell knocked out of anything."

The Hermit reasons from this that when prices settle and prosperity returns radicalism will slough off naturally. So that he has decided not to be a pessimist any more. One of these days all the world will smile again.

ROSKAMS WILL GO TO REDWOOD TREE LAND

Realtor's Family Plans a Very Happy June Outing

"The Call of the Open Road" may not sound strong to many people on a cloudy day, but William Roskam, 1025 Santa Anita, hears it plainly and is tinkering about with his car preparing for a trip in June.

Mr. and Mrs. Roskam and daughter and son will take a trip to the land of the big redwood trees in the north. While Mr. and Mrs. Roskam are looking forward to the trip as a vacation their greatest interest in it lies in the educational value of the outing for the little children.

"I can remember the first trip I took away from home. It was when I was ten years old and I rode on horseback to a little village only 3½ miles from the farm. I never knew the place was there and I can remember to this day that first impression I had when seeing that village.

"By taking the children to the north they will be able to understand and to talk more intelligently about the San Joaquin valley," said Mr. Roskam when speaking of his trip for the month of June.

PERMITS NEED BEAKER FULL OF H2O

What has happened to the building permit office?

Quick, James. Bring Elmer Dale some water.

Not one single building permit was signed by the building inspector Wednesday. Thursday only one man, Orvall Bell, wanted to build. He plans for a $2000 dwelling in Keystone park.

Something must be wrong. Some one needs reviving. For a booming town like Burbank with tourists pouring into California hourly, such a record looks very pale and white.

What can be done about it?

She was a dear old lady with a rosy face framed in silver hair and eyes that were all kindness.

She was being shown around the prison and endeavored as she passed to say a few kind words to the unfortunate prisoners.

"Remember, my good man," she chirruped to one veteran, "that 'stone walls do not a prison make nor iron bars a cage'."

"Well," said the old sinner, "they got me hynotized, then—that's all, ma'am."

An American who took an English house for the summer had a schedule of the tips his servants expected printed for the guidance of his guests. He had taken a dislike to the butler who came with the house, and the list, after enumerating the fees for the cook, the housemaids, the chauffeur, and so on, finished with, "The guy with the black whiskers you will meet in the front hall—not a cent."

MUSIC MEMORY BOOKS SHOW GOOD WORK

Music Memory Contest Clippings notebooks are remarkably well done. The ability to start a thing and see it through to the end is itself a recommendation to any pupil. Many more pupils started out in the contest than finished just in the matter of keeping up the clippings.

Many who did not hand in a notebook will take the final examination and will stand a chance on winning a prize although the pupil with a good notebook will have that mark added to the examination score, a perfect book adding a mark of 30 to the music test.

Frances Campbell, Isabel Keppe, Margaret Wood, Louis Huntly, Marguerite Hilton, Henry Cohel, Gladys Brasswell, Wanda Wheeler, Florence Franklin, Edith Stolper, Gladys Alpert, Jack Gilbert, Mariona Mason, Elizabeth Brown, Wilfred Haflinger and Frances Brown are the sixteen who stand the best chances of winning a prize of some kind, according to those in charge.

JEFFERSON'S HOME TO BE SHRINE OF DEMOCRACY

WASHINGTON, May 17. (United Press).—A campaign will soon be opened to make a second Mt. Vernon of Monticello, the home of Thomas Jefferson, the author of the Declaration of Independence and third president of the United States. Richmond, Washington and New York organizations are seeking a fund of $1,000,000 to purchase the property and make permanent a fund for its care.

Jefferson built the mansion on a mountain top near Charlottesville, Va., and the building looks much today as it did when Lafayette and Daniel Webster were there as guests of the founder of the democratic party. It is a brick mansion with white pillars, cornices and balustrades surmounted by a dome, standing in the midst of a lawn overlooking river, woodlands and fertile valley, with a view of mountains to the west and of long extending coastal plain to the east.

Jefferson occupied the house in 1770, when the old Jefferson family home at Shadwell, four miles away, was burned. There he brought his bride, two years later. There he retired after his second term as president.

In 1912 a bill was introduced in congress by Representative Littleton providing for the purchase of Monticello by the nation. Although the time was propitious because the democratic party had just returned to power, the bill was not passed, nor was it in 1917, when it was revived. Now, however, Jefferson Levy, the owner, has expressed his willingness to sell.

A woman runs almost as fast when she sees a mouse as a man does when he hears a baby crying.

JUDGE HEARS LIQUOR CASE

The case of A. Atovitch, 224 Scott road, was heard by Judge A. A. Crawford this morning. Two hundred and fifty gallons of something in little brown barrels were found at the Atovitch home by the Burbank police force at 2 o'clock one morning last week. Tests showed that among other things, the liquid contained 12 per cent of alcohol.

Frank Dominguez of Los Angeles is the lawyer for Atovich. He demanded a jury trial at first for his client, but later decided it was a case for the judge.

The brewer of the concoction was wanted by the Glendale police, as he formerly made Glendale his home, and the police there say that he had been reported to them for making intoxicating liquor.

SET DATE FOR ANNUAL PICNIC

Presbyterians Planning for Frolic May 26

Presbyterians are planning for a big Sunday school picnic to be given a week from Saturday evening at Brookside park. The pastor, Rev. Thos. Stevenson was practicing for it the past week, when he donned a blue-checked gingham apron and washed dishes for several hours after preparing a supper for several hours for the Y. M. C. A. boys.

The pastor got a good idea of the capacity of young boys, so that he will endeavor to see that there will be an unbounded supply of baked beans for the dinner, with a mountain of ice cream.

The adults are counting on the picnic of families for a good time even more than the children, and the entire church, Sunday school and friends are talking enthusiastically of Saturday, May 26.

WILL ENTERTAIN QUEEN ESTHERS

Methodist Home Missionary Society to Be Hostesses

The Women's Home Missionary Society will entertain the Queen Esther girls at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon at the Methodist church. Last year the Queen Esthers entertained at the annual mite-box day, and the Women's society is now returning their hospitality.

Mrs. Grace Lovejoy and sister, Miss Marion Shaley, will assist in a concert at Lynnwood this evening. The concert is given under the auspices of the Community church.

BURBANK WOMEN ARE HOSTESSES

Mrs. Jack Isbell, 575 North Olive avenue, entertained Wednesday the members of the Sunset Canyon Country Club bridge players. The deep red of the American Beauty made a colorfully vivid setting for the gay affair.

Mrs. Roy Campbell and Mrs. Kirkman made the high scores of the afternoon.

Mrs. J. A. Swall, 918 North Angeleno avenue, entertained delightfully Thursday afternoon the members of the M. M. club at a bridge luncheon. Pink was the color chosen for the decorations. Dainty pink candy baskets held the place cards.

Members of the Sunset Canyon Country club who enjoy five hundred are planning to have a series of five hundred parties every Friday evening. Members and their friends will have an early dinner and the card game will start about 7:30 o'clock.

An elaborate banquet was given at the Sunset Canyon Country Club Thursday evening for the Burbank Board of Education by teachers of all the schools. After a delightful seven-course dinner, an informal program of short talks and songs, given by hosts, hostesses and guests, entertained everyone.

Mrs. Homer Jones, secretary of the board, sang "I Passed by Your Window" (Taylor-Brahe), and "A Bowl of Roses" (Cadman), and "Doe Skin Blanket (Cadman). She was accompanied by Miss Verl Freyburger, music supervisor of the John Muir school. Mrs. Jones has an unusually lovely voice and the songs were well suited to it. Mrs. Perkins Mrs. Allen, Miss Smith and Miss Flynn, accompanied by Mr. White at the piano, sang several clever numbers. The quartet was called back time and again. Miss Lawrence, accompanied by Miss Papenfuss, was one of the soloists. President Duncan Forsyth, the new trustee; J. J. King, Mr. Moore, Mr. Collins and Mr. Thomas gave informal talks.

BURBANK CHORAL CLUB TO BE IN L. A. PARADE

Members Will Decorate Cars in Black and White Lyres

The Burbank Choral Club members are making plans for the parade in Los Angeles, which closes Music week Saturday night. The singers have been asked to join other musical organizations in the celebration.

The club emblem, a lyre, will be the theme of the decoration of the cars for the evening. Banners of black and white will bear the name of the Burbank Choral Club and an immense black and white lyre will be used on the front of in black and white decorating the sides of the cars.

It is hoped that the entire membership of active and associate members, totalling nearly 200, will attend, although it will not be possible for every one to go. Every member is urged to go and take his own car.

Twenty-one bands have already pledged to join the parade.

THIEF ROBS MAN OF $50 BOND

Mike Culak of the Florence Cafe thought he would save a little money for the rainy day forty or fifty years from now. He bought a $50 Victory bond with some of his sayings. But somebody else beside Mike has cashed in on the bond.

The Burbank police officers think in due course of time they may nab the thief. Meantime Mike has to redouble his thrift efforts in order to make up for lost time.

Baptists to Close Week's Services

Dedication services of the Baptist church will close this evening. Rev. F. N. Baker and Rev. W. Riddle will preach. Special music will feature the evening.

Burbank night with Burbank ministers and teachers as speakers was one of the inspiring services of the week. The spirit of co-operation on the part of the townspeople for the attainment of the best interests of Burbank was a helpful part of the evening.

SKULL AND CROSS BONES FLEET OUT FOR LIQUOR

English Underworld Sails for the Open Seas After Bootleggers

By CHARLES McCANN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, May 18 (United Press)—Volunteers from all parts of England's underworld are flocking to the skull-and-crossbones of the pirate fleet.

These pirates prey on the rum runners that are found along the U. S. Atlantic coast. The pirates are so strong that it is making rum-running almost as bad as being honest.

Reports here are that the liquor pirates now operating off Long Island Sound are mainly from British ports—the stock that, in other days, manned the bucaneering ships which took toll from the world's merchantmen.

And there are other reports that the "merchantmen"—the bootleggers—are doing what their forerunners did—signing on crews who can fight and making it worth their while to meet machine gun with machine gun.

It is declared here that, though the first rum pirates operated from the United States, their existence was due to an ambitious plan formed in London to sell bootleg liquor in the United States without going to the trouble of taking it all the way across the Atlantic—or paying for it.

The pirate fleet is declared to be well organized, with the usual mysterious "men higher up," and a firm, if unfeeling, intention of making a dishonest living from the "honest" rum-runners, as their turbanned ancestors did from honest merchantmen.

The organizing genius of the pirate fleet operating from England and controlling most of those operations from the states—there are a few amateurs—is believed to be the former chief steward of an Atlantic liner.

It is the safest form of piracy ever known. The ships that engage in it can obtain clearance papers in the ordinary way, as fishermen or tramps. They prey on an illegal traffic. It does the bootleggers no good to "squeal"—even when they have the chance, for if they put up a fight the odds are against them. A complaint to United States authorities that a cargo of illicit whiskey had been stolen would do them no good, even if it did them no harm.

The bootlegging game has grown to large proportions here. There is no way British authorities can prevent ships from taking abroad perfectly legal cargoes of spirits.

Any day in the cafes and restaurants of the west end of London there may be seen Americans, prosperous and idle, who are engaged in the traffic. There are others, idle but not prosperous, who have come over here on a "shoestring," to sell their knowledge of the game to speculative Britishers.

Those who come over here with the money buy stocks of whiskey and gin themselves. The others raise the money from gamblers or bookmakers willing to take chances in any event the "goods" are seen safe on board the ship that is to take them to the states — a schooner, a trawler or an old tramp steamer.

Then comes the anxious part. The moneyed agents sit around buying drinks and the unmoneyed ones just drinking them, whiling away the fortnight or month or two or three that may elapse before a carefully worded cablegram comes informing them that the "goods" have arrived at an American port, or have been sold at sea.

It means a profit of from $10,000 to $350,000 to be split up among those who financed the trip and those who organized it.

It used to work almost too easily. Occasionally a ship would get careless and would be picked up by revenue men and there would be no cablegram.

But now there are many disappointments. It was not until recently that the real reason was found—pirates.

It began to leak out that there was a new variation of the double cross at work, and that there was a three-mile limit to honor among thieves, as well as to the activities of revenue men.

It was found that more and more boozeless bootleggers were starting out—strong ships, large crews, but no cargo aboard.

Bootleggers need small crews of honest seamen for their work, who can be depended upon not to murder the skipper and sail off with the proceeds and who will be content with a modest "split."

The new crews were made up of ticketless mates, berthless and unberthable seamen from dockland "pubs," and thugs and gunmen from the slums and tenderloins of the great ports.

They are the ones who form the crews of the pirate ships. They join by invitation, and the best of them, after their integrity as dependable pirates has been established, may be assigned to join up on selected bootleg ships and, at the proper time, drop a flare overboard as a signal in case a waiting pirate ship fails to find them.

There is even more money in piracy than in bootleg. All the capital required is for the ship and the crew and the fuel and food for the first trip. There is only the risk that the crew will go Bolshevik after a haul.

All this means huge losses to the men who put up the money for the "legitimate" bootlegging trade. It means being broke in a strange country for the "shoestring" men, and it means also being suspected of having put over something on the financiers.

Some of the shoestring men, according to report, have turned pirate themselves, figuring that with the blame they may as well have what should go with it.

They find it easy to find a privateer to join and members of pirate crews are said to be obtaining $1,000 a trip and expenses, with a bonus for a good catch.

But the bootleggers are planning means to restore the game to its former simplicity. Some of them have begun to operate from Japan, trans-shipping liquor at a Japanese port to rum-runners which make for the Pacific coast. The others are preparing to fight back.

Just as some of the bootlegging crews have turned pirate, some of the pirates are beginning to reform—to form the nucleus of a bootleggers' Fascisti.

The game is too profitable for the promoters to permit it to be broken up. They can afford to ship big crews and raise the pay; and there is a prospect that within the next two or three months stories may be heard of old-fashioned pirate fights off the North Atlantic coast.

DELICATESSEN IS OLD STUFF

EUGENE, Ore., May 19.—Cold victuals were good enough for the aborigines that resided in what is now Oregon, in the opinion of Dr. Edwin T. Hodge, professor of geology at the University of Oregon here. Dr. Hodge bases his belief on the fact that the teeth of ancient skeletons, recently found on the banks of the Santiam river, although worn very low, show no traces of decay.

Since hot foodstuffs have a deteriorating effect on teeth, it is probable, thinks Dr. Hodge, that despite the fact that the aborigines heated their food, all cooking was done in the open and the food cooled off before being eaten.

Dr. Hodge would not comment on the assertion that perhaps the aboriginal wives got the family food at delicatessen stores.

OBSERVATIONS

BY A GLENDALE OLD TIMER

We hear and read a great deal these days about the awful crime wave that has been sweeping across the country ever since the war closed but there is one phase of it that I have not seen or heard mentioned, and that is that the laxity in law observance is fully as pronounced among so-called best citizens as in the underworld. While the bootlegger, the dope peddler, the bandit and the murderer are more largely in evidence than common, the everyday citizen is conspicuous for his open and contemptuous disregard for the law. Mothers of school children here in California openly conduct gambling operations in the school buildings in the shape of raffles; mass meetings are called to denounce police officers, justices of the peace and even city officials for daring to arrest and punish violators of traffic laws and violators of the law enacted to protect children from the rapacity of the venders of cigarettes, and well-to-do law evaders are patted on the back and cheered for their ingenuity in outwitting officers of the law. The massacre of 22 pleading victims by union miners at Herrin, Ill. was a hideous crime, but so also was the acquittal of these same murderers by a jury of perjurers, and so was the spineless attitude of the state officials who sent no aid to the terrorized wretches in the mine stockade, though warned in ample time that murder would surely result, otherwise. The murders in Florida's convict camp were a blot on the fair name of the state, but equally so was the act of the legislature that passed laws permitting such a system, and that of the governor who signed the law, knowing the bloody history of such enactments in other states. Here in California, we have just had a most remarkable instance of wholesale perjury and contempt for the constitution of the state and of the United States, fully as venal in a strictly moral view, as the act of the bootlegger who defies the 18th amendment to the same constitution. This constitution makes it obligatory on the legislature of every state to reapportion congressional and legislative districts after every census, to conform to the population increases and decreases. Every member of California's general assembly now in session took a solemn oath, calling upon God to witness the same, that he or she would uphold the constitution of the United States and the laws of California. Yet a majority of these members violated this oath by voting to disregard this provision of the constitution. Is it any wonder we have crime waves when the persons we elect to make our laws deliberately perjure themselves and in effect say, as once did a notorious governor of South Carolina, "To hell with the constitution of the United States." What wonder that there is a crime wave over the country when our lawmakers, our prominent business men and our mothers think nothing of flouting the law of the land. I am of the opinion that if such persons would all become law observers instead of lawbreakers and unite in seeking to bring about a return to law-abiding conditions, the crime wave would very soon be stopped. A prominent Glendale minister in a recent sermon, declared that the lawbreaker started his career of anarchy in the home, generally as a little child. If the American home is made a place where obedience to the parents' commands is insisted upon, crimes and criminals will no longer be known.

When I was a boy of 15 to 17, I clerked in a grocery store, the customers of which came from a radius of 12 to 15 miles, as it was in a county seat town. Among these customers was an aged resident of a township bordering the Wabash river, who had been a hunter, trapper and boatman for many years. He was well along in the seventies when I knew him, but still vigorous and active, though hair and beard were snow white. But his form was not bent in the slightest nor his eyes dim. He was born in the latter part of the 18th century, about 1797, I think he once told me, and he grew up in the woods. He fought Indians from the time he was 12 years old and had been through some severe campaigning in the Black Hawk war of 1832, when young Abraham Lincoln saw his first war service. Mr. Grover described some of the sights when the Indians were finally rounded up—young mothers with babes at the breast, many seriously wounded, dead or badly maimed warriors and a wretched and despondent tribe, dispossessed of lands owned for many years to provide homes for greedy settlers. But the most striking of his many narrations was of a strange sight he witnessed one time, shortly after his return from the war, in a dense forest that lined the Wabash river. In those days (this was about 1835) the forest extended almost unbroken, except for occasional "openings" or stretches of prairie, from lakes to gulf and from the Appalachian mountains to the mighty Rockies. Mr. Grover lived in a log cabin near the river bank and on this occasion was on his way to see a neighbor living several miles away. Though bears, wolves, panthers and other "varmints" were still quite plentiful, as settlers in that part of the state were very few, he had no fear, as his trusty rifle was a secure defense. As he walked along under the wide-spreading branches of the noble forest trees he suddenly became aware of a peculiar grunting sound that grew in volume as he proceeded. So, slipping from tree to tree, he gradually approached a little clearing, from which the unwonted sounds came. And there he said, was the strangest sight his eyes ever beheld. In the very center of the clearing was the stump of a large tree that had recently been felled, and on this was a very large timber wolf, apparently in mortal terror, for surging around the stump were scores of wild hogs, grunting their anger and gnashing their large tushes, while the foam flew from their jaws. Occasionally, one would make a futile spring at the wolf, which stepped around and around on the stump's contracted (to him) top. Occasional movements of the angry hogs disclosed the carcass of a young pig near the foot of the stump. The wolf had evidently killed the animal, whose dying cries had summoned his vengeful companions. Mr. Grover said he watched the tragic drama of the woods with fascinated eyes for an hour or more, for he took no note of the time, utterly regardless of his own extreme danger. Had the hogs caught sight of him, his life would not have been worth a moment's purchase, as, in their anger, they would have destroyed everything they could have reached. Finally, the wolf, tiring from his constant motion, sat down for a moment and his tail dropped below the level of the stump's top. Instantly a large boar made a spring and caught it between his powerful jaws. He pulled hard and the howling wolf dug his nails into the wood. Other hogs caught hold of the tail and soon the wolf was jerked from his perch. Then arose a deafening uproar. The wolf sprang high in the air a time or two in a desperate effort to escape, but all to no avail. He was throttled and soon his lifeless form was being dragged about and trampled upon by the furious hogs. By this time, Mr. Grover was securely perched in a small tree and it was well so, for soon the hogs scented him and rushed to the tree that supported him. They reared up against the trunk, clashed their tushes and grunted their anger. He waited for a time until they had quieted down, then, drawing a bead on a big boar, he shot him dead. This scared the rest of them away and they quickly fled, leaving him to descend from the tree and go on his way, rejoicing. He had the curiosity to look for the remains of the wolf, but said all he could find was a few bits of bone and a tuft of fur.

Tom Skeyhill's lecture last Monday night was a wonderful historical recital and forecast. His statement that man existed in a barbaric state for a million years until 7000 years ago, when civilization began to dawn, was news to most of his hearers, who wondered where he got his information, also that about the Cretan civilization. None of it appears in Ridpath's history of the world, a standard authority. On the contrary, the generally accepted beginning of population is set at about 6000 years ago, with Adam and Eve as the starting point. How long our first parents lived in the Garden of Eden, whether one year or one million or more years, is not stated in the Bible narrative, which all Christians and many others accept as an undeniable fact. It could easily have been a million or more years, but no time is given. Moses, the writer of the first five books of the Bible, called the Pentateuch, tells of the creation in six periods of time, and of Adam and Eve taking up their dwelling in the garden. How many days or millions of years they remained there as sinless beings is not indicated. Moses takes up the history again after they are expelled from Eden and thenceforward it is one connected narrative of places and peoples, covering a period of about 2500 years. Where Tom got his authority for the statements made I cannot conjecture, but he seemed quite certain of it. Anyhow, it was a splendid historical summary of world events up to the dawn of our modern civilization and he showed an intimate knowledge of ancient, mediaeval and modern history. His relation of happenings in Russia, and Turkey, and in some other countries as well, does not tally in the slightest degree with newspaper reports, but these latter are so conflicting and at times diametrically opposed, while he claims to have gotten his information directly from the inhabitants of the countries, that I am inclined to believe Tom's accounts are the true ones. He seemed quite positive that the young men of all the nations he visited are all opposed to war and that is a very hopeful sign for the future. We who have sons who fought in the late war know that they are almost to a man very bitter against even the thoughts of future war. I feel sure that everyone who attended this remarkable lecture felt that this wonderful young man has done and is still doing great service to the present and future generations in so energetically contending for the abolishment of war.

Do you know that in Southern California May has fewer sunshiny days than any other month of the year, generally? It is a month of flowers, undoubtedly, for seldom is seen a greater profusion of color and perfume, but it cannot be claimed for it, as in the east, that it is the month of "sunshine and flowers."

At a reunion of former residents of Belle Fourche, South Dakota, in Long Beach, recently, there were 40 persons present, and 20 more might have been there. Think of it—60 former residents of a little town of 1500 population in a radius of 40 miles around Los Angeles. Probably many other cities and towns of that vast section of our country lying east of the Rocky mountains have lost a proportionate number of their residents to Southern California in the past five years. And judging from reports of the vast numbers coming the next few months, many eastern cities will be almost depopulated.

Quite frequently, yet, the expressions, "The United States are" and "These United States," are heard. Some competent authority, either congress or the supreme court, decided several year ago that "The United States is." It is proper to say "These united states," but not "These United States." Do you sense the great difference in these last two expressions?

Every man hugs the delusion that sooner or later he will invent something that will make him rich.

THE FIRST KICK ON THE DOWNHILL PATH IS SURE

LOS ANGELES, May 18.—(United Press).—Dr. E. G. Goodrich, chief physician at the receiving hospital where 25,000 patients are treated yearly, does not believe that the majority of drug addicts start the habit because of ill health, contrary to the popular belief.

"I believe that fully 90 per cent of the addicts treated and examined here start the use of drugs for the same reason the users of tobacco and whisky start those habits," Goodrich said. "They want to get a thrill.

"All habits, whiskey, tobacco and sex dissipation are allied and degrees of vice are graduated. If a man hasn't enough moral fibre he goes from tobacco to whiskey and the bottom of the grade is dope.

"Understand," Goodrich said. "I am not a reformer. My reason for speaking on the subject is that I am interested in the psychology of vice. Dope steps in when the vitality is so weakened that the ordinary stimulants, tobacco and whiskey fail to revive flagging energies. Persons with criminal tendencies are generally prepared for dope because of previous depravity. Holdup men find fearlessness in drugs. They take chances under the influence of narcotics they would not take under normal conditions.

"About a dozen doses will start anyone on the way to addiction. The physical craving for drugs can be crushed, but a person who has been an addict for any length of time never forgets dope. He might overcome the habit permanently, but generally his resisting powers and fighting spirit are too weak. The chances are three to one that he will be back if given the opportunity."

LEAD POISONING

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE
Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.
(Copyright, 1923, by The Associated Newspapers)

Of all so-called industrial poisons there probably is none which does so much damage as lead. This both because it is one of the most insidious of poisons, producing serious systemic effects so subtly that their origin may long remain unsuspected, and also because of the great variety of processes in which lead is employed, thus multiplying its opportunities for harm.

Again and again, in fact, illness of a severe sort has been unexpectedly traced to lead, even when there seemed reason to incriminate some other agency.

Thus, since the adoption of the prohibition amendment to the American constitution there has been an increasing number of cases of lead poisoning among users of alcoholic beverages. In such cases examination of the sources of supply shows, not that the alcohol consumed has been deadly in itself, but that it has been made deadly by absorption of lead from the piping of condensers attached to unlicensed stills.

Poisoning from cosmetics containing lead is by no means uncommon. It would be difficult to estimate the number of women who owe their prolonged ill-health, sometimes culminating in a fatal collapse, to the habitual use of cosmetics having lead as one of their ingredients.

But the commonest cause of lead poisoning, of course, is the drinking of water contaminated by lead from the pipes through which the water runs. Next commonest is working with lead-containing paints. So common is this cause that lead poisoning has become proverbially a painters' disease.

Other workers more or less subject to it, because it plays a part in the industrial processes in which they are engaged, are rubber workers, typesetters, stereotypers, plumbers, tinsmiths, lead glaziers, riveters, drillers and workers on insecticides. Nor does this by any means exhaust the list of those whose occupations may put them in peril from lead.

Fortunately, with increasing knowledge of this peril safety measures have been increasingly applied. Besides which, not everybody is equally susceptible to lead poisoning. Some seem able to resist its effects indefinitely. Nevertheless, so many are so susceptible to it and exposure to lead is so common that, as recently suggested by Dr. Wade Wright:

"Physicians may well keep lead in mind as a possible explanation of clinical findings of obscure origin, when such findings are analogous to those traceable to poisoning by lead."

This hint applies equally to persons who, knowing that they are exposed by the character of their occupation to a lead hazard, become aware that they are gradually losing in health. The sooner they seek expert advice the better for them, if lead actually has made them its victims.

Concerning the typical symptoms of lead poisoning and the methods by which it is medically combatted, I shall have something to say another day.

U. OF C. TRACK TEAM IS COMING BACK

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 18 (United Press).—Two times winner of the inter-collegiate track and field championship, the University of California is to send a team of 13 stars to the Pennsylvanit stadium, late this month, in an attempt to win the title for the third straight time.

Of the 13 members of the squad, 11 of them are starters in the field events. California won the title last year on the points amassed in the field, which were more than enough to overcome the deficiency on the track, where the Pacific coast team could do nothing better than third in the quarter and fourth in the two-mile.

The Californians will have more of a job to do the same thing this year, as the east is stronger in field material and the coast team is weaker by the loss of Jack Merchant and the injury of Brick Muller, which has almost put him out of the high jump.

Princeton looks like the team that will have to be beaten.

* * *

It has often been told how Jack Dempsey thinks he is a great wrestler, how Willie Hoppe would rather be a major league baseball catcher and how Eddie Foy would rather be a Shakespearian. Now Cary Mays has aspirations for the prize ring.

The Yankee pitching star told newspapermen in Washington recently that he was a good fighter and he put on a pantomime of how he could beat Floyd Johnson. He insisted seriously that he felt he had the qualifications for a fighter.

When Babe Ruth heard about it he let it be known in a whisper that could be heard several city blocks away that Carl could be accomodated without leaving the ranks of ball players.

Ruth himself has an idea that he could have been a swat king if he had chosen the ring instead of the diamond.

Mays may hear plenty from the Cleveland ball club when the Indians get their first chance to razz him about his leaning toward fisticuffs. The Indians do not like Mays.

Perhaps a match might be arranged between the blonde Carl and Steve O'Neil, the stocky Indian catcher.

Johnny Kilbane, the bosom pal of O'Neil once said that Steve was the best man with the gloves he had ever seen out of the ring.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

A MENTAL CROSS SECTION

I wonder what would happen if I said exactly what I feel like saying, instead of signifying assent when the family descends upon me in a body and says, "How do you feel, John?"

If I felt well I wouldn't be lying here. If I didn't feel a little better my T. P. R., as the doctor glibly calls my temperature, pulse, and respiration, would indicate the fact.

If I felt much worse I'd hope to be dead.

Being dead must be rather drab.

And speaking of drab things, I wonder why blankets are such dreary looking articles after they have been washed into that state of desirability called by the home nurse, "soft, old blankets."

I like 'em bright—and cheerful! Nothing like a touch of scarlet in a sick room!

If, instead of sending the conventional things, such as roses or carnations, people sent sprigs of bitter-sweet berries to a sick man when he lies in bed, or branches of autumn leaves that suggest something beyond a florist's art—and bills—

If—but of course they don't.

Out of the kindness of their hearts people go on doing things, even in sending flowers to a sick man.

Personally, I get more kick out of a bunch of pine cones that smell of the woods than out of any florist's box.

If the nurse would only not tuck the sheets so tightly across my feet that my toes become cramped!

A sick person's bed must look neat and tidy—of course—but why make it into a strait-jacket?

If someone would only turn my pillows occasionally without asking me if I wanted them turned! Any one who has been ill and felt the grateful cool of the underside of the pillows can scarcely be turned too often.

I am tired of drinking milk in a glass.

I am tired of the people who tiptoe outside my bedroom door and say in silent whispers: "Have you seen John today? How do you think he looks? Thin, of course—but when I had my operation——"

I wish the nurse would not stand on the only creaky board in the floor when she enters the room, thinking I am asleep.

I wish I might say what I think without fear of being thought delirious.

This poor mortal flesh of mine is in revolt against the tyranny of a family that is too affectionately unkind.

When I am asleep why can't they believe the evidence of their eyes and allow me to sleep without bending over me, peering into my face and whispering, "Are you asleep?"

If I'm not asleep I'm trying to sleep, as closed eyelids signify.

If my doctor would only sit on a chair instead of on my bed and, incidentally, always on my feet.

If I might only have my medicine once without someone saying, "Is it very nasty?"

If I might only be accorded the to be silent and still, without being asked if I felt worse, or where the pain was.

If I might only be accorded the benefit of a doubt and allowed to feel better without talking about it. I—but what's the use?

"So long?" exclaimed the secretary,. surprised. "Why, they've only been open a couple of years."

It was the visitor's turn to be surprised.

"A couple of years! Why, I understood those those links were at least thirty-seven years old."

Some say it's a sailor's myth, this Sargasso Sea, yet the atlas shows it at the very door of the Gulf of Mexico. LIFE COURSES ARE COMBINED

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif., May 18.—By uniting its various departments of biological sciences, Stanford University has organized the first school of biology in any American university, as the result of action taken by the Stanford Academic Council recently, it is said here. The school of biology includes the existing departments of anatomy, bacteriology, experimental pathology, biochemistry, botany, entomology, paleontology, physiology, zoology, food research, and Hopkins Marine Station.

Beginning next year, students at Stanford majoring in this school will be granted the A. B. degree in biology, although it will be possible for them to take the degree in separate biological subjects, as at present, if they choose.

The faculty of the school consists of the teaching staffs of the departments, together with an executive head who will be appointed from its present membership. The departments will retain control of their internal membership. The departments will retain control of their department affairs, but administration of the school in general will be under an executive committee headed by Professor Earnest G. Martin.

For their degree under the new regime, students will be required to devote one third of the college work of four years to preparation in biological sciences and in general to put in the equivalent of at least one full quarter's work in each of the three departments of the school of biology. Their program of study as a whole will be under the direction of the school faculty.

The new school, co-ordinating all the work of the biological departments under one faculty and a single head, is the outgrowth of the conviction that there are advantages in offering students an opportunity to master the fundamentals of all biological science, rather than to specialize too early in single branches. It is thought that the individual needs of many students can be more effectively met by such a co-ordinated course.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

ON MOTHER'S DAY

A house with morning glories on,
A woman in the door,
A tender smile upon her face
That I shall see no more.
Oh, that was very long ago,
Yes, many and many a year,
But in a reverent memory
The picture is so clear.

And she was young and very fair,
As I look back and see,
That picture of her in the door
Is very dear to me.
So often as I came or went,
Or errand, school or chore,
She waved me greeting or good-by,
As she stood in the door.

And morning glories twined above,
Along the water spout,
And how the golden summer sun
Above was shining out.
And how the birds were singing then
In bush and shrub and tree;
That picture of her in the door
Is very dear to me.

I see the morning glories now,
The trees that were so tall,
And apple blossoms on a bough,
The little house and all.
And it was all so long ago,
Nor ever I shall see
A picture in the whole, wide world
That is as dear to me.

Bill to Cause School Investigation Defeated

Superintendent R. D. White yesterday said that one of the bills introduced in the California legislature in connection with Governor Richardson's economy budget for the schools of the state was a measure calling for an appropriation of $10,000 to finance an investigation of California schools to which the state contributes, the governor having pronounced them inefficient. The bill has just been killed in the senate on the ground that an investigation of the schools was made by a committee of the legislature in 1921 and its report is on file and available to all California legislators, therefore a further investigation at this time is not justified.

CONSUMERS' TEST RACE NEARS END

Deluge of Labels Pour Into the Glendale Daily Press Office

With only three more weeks remaining in the Consumers' Contest, contestants are making preparations for a last minute deluge of labels and as a result there will probably be many unexpected changes in the standing of contestants. Ruth Stein succeeded this week in grabbing first place by a small majority over Raymond Hall, who has headed the list for a good many weeks. Mrs. W. H. Harpster succeeded in retaining third place although she is closely crowded by Mary Kirby. Jim Joe Rhodes turned in nearly a half million votes this week and went over the million mark for sixth place.

Contestants are asked to count their labels and make a complete list of them to turn into the Contest Editor. This will help avoid mistakes in counting and will furnish a check so that errors might be corrected. Contestants are asked to turn in their labels as early as possible in the week.

Chauncy Depew tells the following anecdote in his recent book of memoirs: "When I was at Yale, the faculty included several professors of remarkable force and originality. The professor of Greek, Mr. Hadley, father of the distinguished ex-president of the university, had a caustic wit, and his sayings were the current talk of campus. He maintained discipline—which was quite lax in those days—by the exercise of this ability. One day, when the boys had driven a calf into the recitation room, Professor Hadley quietly remarked: 'You will take out that animal. We will get along with our usual number today.'"
